The Myth Of The Money Tree

Norman L. Geisler, Thomas A. Howe

The Myth Of The Money Tree:

The Myth of the Money Tree Colette Dowling, 1998 In this book Colette Dowling author of The Cinderella Complex confronts the myth of women's financial stability and explores female attitudes to money dependency and desire Dowling strongly believes that women's dread of financial responsibility is related to their fear of ending up destitute Under scrutiny this fear exposes the reality that women want more than anything to be provided for Town of Love Anne Ch.

Ostby, 2013-09-01 With insight and brutal honesty this book paints a vivid picture of some of the world's most vulnerable women and children Called women of love very young girls make up a workforce tasked with feeding their families by offering their bodies up for sale It is a tradition practiced for centuries by the poorest families who live by sending their daughters sisters and wives into sex trafficking Baby girls are welcome arrivals in these towns of love everyone knows that one day they will be the breadwinners despite being untouchable and despised by Indian society Tamanna dares to break free of this legacy of prostitution even though it also means being shunned by her entire family As a 19 year old she runs away an action which costs her dearly she is forced to leave her five year old daughter Rupa behind with Jabbar in the house with the big gleaming knife Eight years later Tamanna knows that time is running out for Rupa and she demands help both from the police and from the underfunded aid organization Pukaar forcing them to consider whether they can look a mother in the face and argue that saving her daughter isn't worth risking everything

Cultural Alternatives and a Feminist

Anthropology Frederick Errington, Deborah Gewertz, 1987 The Chambri of Papua New Guinea are well known as being the Tchambuli of Margaret Mead's influential work Sex and Temperament in which she described them as a people among whom in contrast to Western society women dominated over men In this book however Frederick Errington and Deborah Gewertz re analyse Mead's data and present original material of their own to reveal that Mead misinterpreted the Chambri situation and that in fact Chambri women neither dominate Chambri men nor vice versa They use this reformulated interpretation to discuss the relevance of the Chambri case for the understanding of gender relations in Western society today showing that male dominance is not inevitable At the same time they also use their knowledge of cultural alternatives to clarify Western feminist objectives

Ömie Sex Affiliation Marta Rohatynskyj, 2022-10-14 The practice of affiliating the female child with the mother and the male child with the father was considered a rare and inexplicable practice in Papua New Guinean ethnography at the time the original data was collected some forty years ago Marta Rohatynskyj undertakes a shift in her analytical concepts of kinship studies to reveal the deep seated disjunction between female and male that this practice represents The author argues that this practice is associated with a totemic animistic ontology and has currency in a particular type of Melanesian society
