Robert Christgau and Garry Wills Other Voices Everette Dennis, 2017-07-05 Conflicting journalistic voices that were raised in the past have become such a jumble that merely identifying them is difficult Dennis and Rivers define categorize present and examine the voices that contributed to what became known as the new media environment in the 1970s This new journalism came about as a result of dissatisfaction with existing values and standards of the early 1960s style of journalism The authors are comprehensive in their concerns as reflected in the national scope presented They cover developments in the major cities on both coasts in the Middle West and South in every major region of the United States Most of the research required travel and interviews all of it required reading almost endlessly and watching the video productions of journalists who built the structure of alternative television Dennis and Rivers offer a representative view of forms and media as well as the people who fashioned the new orientation The authors claim that the wrangling over objective and interpretative reporting misses the main point which is that neither is in close touch with reality The best objective report may cover all surfaces of an event the best interpretative report may explain all its meanings but both are bloodless a world away from the experience Color flavor atmosphere the ultimate human meaning all these the new journalists contend are far beyond the reach of traditional models of journalism This is one of the central reasons for the emergence of different forms and practices in our time This volume will help younger scholars understand the sources of quasi journalistic practices extant today including blogging and electronic only publications

The New New Journalism Robert Boynton, 2007-12-18 Forty years after Tom Wolfe Hunter S Thompson and Gay Talese launched the New Journalism movement Robert S Boynton sits down with nineteen practitioners of what he calls the New New Journalism to discuss their methods writings and careers The New New Journalists are first and foremost brilliant reporters who immerse themselves completely in their subjects Jon Krakauer accompanies a mountaineering expedition to Everest Ted Conover works for nearly a year as a prison guard Susan Orlean follows orchid fanciers to reveal an obsessive subculture few knew existed Adrian Nicole LeBlanc spends nearly a decade reporting on a family in the South Bronx And like their muckraking early twentieth century precursors they are drawn to the most pressing issues of the day Alex Kotlowitz Leon Dash and William Finnegan to race and class Ron Rosenbaum to the problem of evil Michael Lewis to boom and bust economies Richard Ben Cramer to the nitty gritty of politics How do they do it In these interviews they reveal the techniques and inspirations behind their acclaimed works from their felt tip pens tape recorders long car rides and assumed identities to their intimate understanding of the way a truly great story unfolds Interviews with Gay Talese Jane Kramer Calvin Trillin Richard Ben Cramer Ted Conover Alex Kotlowitz Richard Preston

Johnson,1971 George Newnes and the New Journalism in Britain, 1880-1910 Kate Jackson,2018-04-17 This is a study of the noted newspaper proprietor publisher and editor George Newnes and his involvement in the so called New Journalism in Britain from 1880 to 1910 The author examines seven of Newnes s most successful periodicals Tit Bits 1881 The Strand Magazine 1891 The Million 1892 The Westminster Gazette 1893 The Wide World Magazine 1898 The Ladies Field 1898 and The Captain 1899 from a biographical journalistic and broader cultural perspective Newnes assumed a pioneering role in the creation of the penny miscellany paper the short story magazine the true story magazine and the respectable boys paper in the development of colour printing magazine illustration and photographic reproduction and in the redefinition of both political and sporting journalism His publications were shaped by his own distinctive brand of paternalism his professional progression within the field of journalism his liberal democratic and imperialist beliefs and his particular skill as an entrepreneur This innovative periodical publisher utilised the techniques of personalised journalism commercial promotion and audience targeting to establish an interactive relationship and a strong bond of identification with his many readers Kate Jackson employs an interdisciplinary approach building on recent scholarship in the field of periodical research to demonstrate that Newnes balanced and synthesised various potentially conflicting imperatives to create a kind of synergy between business and benevolence popular and quality journalism old and new journalism and ultimately culture and profit

Ireland and the New Journalism K. Steele,M. de Nie,Michael de Nie,2014-07-10 This volume explores the ways in which the complicated revolution in British newspapers the New Journalism influenced Irish politics culture and newspaper practices The essays here further illuminate the central role of the press in the evolution of Irish nationalism and modernism in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries The New Journalism as Avant-Garde Art Juliana Adele

Rausch,2017 Can journalism be avant garde This question arises from the body of work produced by the New Journalists whose leading figures include Truman Capote Tom Wolfe Joan Didion and Norman Mailer Today this question is urgent for considerations of the journalist s role within a political landscape increasingly hostile to the news media Yet it is a question that has not been sufficiently explored in the field of literary study Scholars of literary journalism have identified the features of an experimental journalism traced its historical origins and made claims about how to situate the New Journalism generically While important this scholarship overlooks the relationship between experimentation with conventional journalistic form and similar experimentations in other artistic fields As a result the stakes of the New Journalism s experimentations with conventional reporting have not been sufficiently mined In order to remedy this I place the New Journalism within a broader history of avant garde art The agitation of mainstream journalistic practice undertaken by each of the writers above was spurred by a questioning of a foundational journalistic practice objectivity The New Journalists challenged the authority of fact and its capacity to represent the human condition. This challenge to objectivity drove an experimentation with journalistic form that produced a deeply innovative body of work; however, these innovations are not merely formal. They also call into question the epistemological assumptions that tether journalism to a phenomenal world assumed to be fully representable. Significantly, the challenges to objectivity posed by the New Journalists parallel the challenges to representation posed by avant garde artists like Paul Cezanne and Karel Appel. My dissertation thus situates the challenges to journalistic form undertaken by the New Journalists within a broader history of artistic experimentation and demonstrates that the significance of these experimentations exceeds the fields in which they occur. These arguments provide a framework for understanding not only the formal innovations of avant garde artists but also the epistemological consequences and ethical imperatives inherent in these innovations. My understanding of avant garde art is informed by the work of Jean Francois Lyotard. Over the course of his career, Lyotard illuminated the philosophical dimensions of artistic innovation. For Lyotard, one of the hallmarks of avant garde experimentation is its ability to confront and redress problems across a variety of discursive fields. That is, Lyotard values avant garde experimentation because it responds to discourses beyond its own and much of Lyotard's writing about avant garde art establishes connections between artistic innovation and broader issues of ethics, politics, and justice. Over the course of this dissertation, I demonstrate how the New Journalism participates in this tradition by asking questions about the role and responsibility of the reporter through the self-conscious development of an experimental journalistic aesthetic.

Hellmann argues that new journalism is a new genre of fiction one that deals with fact through fable, discovering, constructing, and self-consciously exploring meaning beyond our media constructed reality. He applies his theory to books by Wolfe, Thompson, Mailer, and Herr.

Rewriting the Newspaper

Thomas R. Schmidt, 2019-06-19

Between the 1970s and the 1990s American journalists began telling the news by telling stories. They borrowed narrative techniques, transforming sources into characters, events into plots, and their own work from stenography to anthropology. This was more than a change in style. It was a change in substance, a paradigmatic shift in terms of what constituted news and how it was being told It was a turn toward narrative journalism and a new culture of news propelled by the storytelling movement Thomas Schmidt analyzes the expansion of narrative journalism and the corresponding institutional changes in the American newspaper industry in the last quarter of the twentieth century In doing so he offers the first institutionally situated history of narrative journalism s evolution from the New Journalism of the 1960s to long form literary journalism in the 1990s Based on the analysis of primary sources industry publications and oral history interviews this study traces how narrative techniques developed and spread through newsrooms advanced by institutional initiatives and a growing network of practitioners proponents and writing coaches who mainstreamed the use of storytelling Challenging the popular belief that it was only a few talented New York reporters Tome Wolfe Jimmy Breslin Gay Talese Joan Didion and others who revolutionized journalism by deciding to employ storytelling techniques in their writing Schmidt shows that the evolution of narrative in late twentieth century American Journalism was more nuanced more purposeful and more institutionally based than the New Journalism myth suggests An analysis of the new journalism based on the development of Tom Wolfe's style Winston Kelley,1983 New Journalism in Perspective James Emmett Murphy,1974
