Information Modelling and Knowledge Bases XVI Yasushi Kiyoki, Y. Kiyoki, Benkt Wangler, Hannu Jaakkola, Hannu Kangassalo, 2005

Modelling of information is necessary in developing information systems Information is acquired from many sources by using various methods and tools It must be recognized conceptualized and conceptually organized efficiently so that users can easily understand and use it Modelling is needed to understand explain organize predict and reason on information It also helps to master the role and functions of components of information systems Modelling can be performed with many different purposes in mind at different levels and by using different notions and different background theories It can be made by emphasizing users conceptual understanding of information on a domain level on an algorithmic level or on representation levels On each level the objects and structures used on them are different and different rules govern the behavior on them Therefore the notions rules theories languages and methods for modelling on different levels are also different It will be useful if we can develop theories and methodologies for modelling to be used in different situations because databases knowledge bases and repositories in knowledge management systems developed on the basis of models and used to technically store information are growing day by day In this publication the interest is focused on modelling of information and one of the central topics is modelling of time Scientific and technical papers of high quality are brought together in this book

Models and Tools for Managing Development Processes Bernhard Westfechtel, 1999-12-15 The development of products in disciplines such as mechanical electrical or software engineering is a challenging task Costs have to be reduced the time to market has to be shortened and quality has to be improved Skilled engineers and sophisticated tools for supporting technical work are necessary prerequisites yet they are not suitable client for meeting these ambitious goals In addition the work of developers must be coordinated so that they cooperate smoothly To this end the steps of the development process have to be planned an engineer executing a task must be provided with documents and tools the results of development activities have to be fed back to management which in turn has to adjust the plan accordingly the documents produced in different working areas have to be kept consistent with each other etc This book reports on models and tools for managing development processes It provides both a survey of the current state of the art and presents our own contributions The material covered in this book is based on research in different engineering disciplines mechanical software and chemical engineering It presents a unified view on the management of development processes in
