Advances in Quaternary Entomology Scott A. Elias, 2009-08-18 Advances in Quaternary Entomology addresses the science of fossil insects by demonstrating their immense contribution to our knowledge of the paleoenvironmental and climatological record of the past 2.6 million years. In this comprehensive survey of the field Scott A Elias recounts development of scholarship reviews the fossil insect record from Quaternary deposits throughout the world and points to rewarding areas for future research. The study of Quaternary entomology is becoming an important tool in understanding past environmental changes. Most insects are quite specific as to habitat requirements and those in non island environments have undergone almost no evolutionary change in the Quaternary period. We therefore can use their modern ecological requirements as a basis for interpreting what past environments must have been like. Describes and identifies principal characteristics of fossil insect groups of the Quaternary period. Ties Quaternary insect studies to the larger field of paleoecology. Offers global coverage of the subject with specific regional examples. Illustrates specific methods and procedures for conducting research in Quaternary Entomology. Offers unique insight into overlying trends and broader implications of Quaternary climate change based on insect life of the period.

Excavations at St. James's Priory, Bristol Reg Jackson, 2006 The Benedictine Priory of St James was established just outside the medieval city of Bristol in 1129AD. Two areas were excavated Site 1 to the east of the Priory church and Site 2 to the west. The Priory was largely destroyed during the Dissolution of 1540 but the area around Site 1 remained in use during the 17th and 18th centuries as housing was built there. Site 2 was in use from the late Saxon period to the 20th century. This publication presents the results of excavations carried out at Site 1 from 1989 and 1995 and from Site 2 from 1994 and 95 along with those obtained from a watching brief kept during landscaping work in 1997. There are also specific chapters on finds and burials.

The Water Supplies and Related Structures of Roman Britain Alfonso Burgers, 2001 The supply of unpolluted water was of high priority throughout the Roman Empire and in Britain as elsewhere organised water supplies played a fundamental role in the development of forts, settlements and towns. This detailed and highly informative study gathers evidence from over 800 archaeological sites including remains of aqueducts, wells, baths, drains, pipes, springs and tanks. Sections examine the validity of the data and the need to reclassify many sites due to their water features which have been neglected in the past. Burgers also looks at the logistics of designing and building the Roman water supply system the engineering principles involved the distribution of water related features in Roman Britain and social and financial aspects of their construction and use. The database is presented in table format.

The Archaeology of Taunton Peter E. Leach, 1984 Decorated Medieval Floor Tiles of Somerset Barbara J. Lowe, 2003 This book is a catalogue of medieval decorated floor tiles from the historic up until 1974 county of Somerset It is intended primarily as a source of reference for archaeologists museum staff art historians and those studying design The descriptions and illustrations of the tiles are split into thematic groups for ease of reference and the gazetteer provides contextual settings It is based both on tiles found in situ on Somerset sites and from collections in Somerset museums Taunton Taunton

Research and Excavation Committee,1984 Field Archaeology in Britain John Coles,2014-11-13 A practical guide to the various modern methods of discovery excavation and recording of the remains left by prehistoric man in Britain It stresses the vital role played by the amateur rescuing evidence of man's past behaviour in these islands and is illustrated by maps site plans and sections and drawings of equipment and surveying procedures Originally published in 1972 Taunton ,1977

Barton Bendish and Caldecote Andrew Rogerson,1997 This volume offers three papers detailing the results of projects in south west Norfolk firstly an extensive one man fieldwalking survey of Barton Bendish parish secondly an area excavation within Barton Bendish thirdly a very detailed one man fieldwalking survey of 6 5 hectares in one field The surveys provided a diverse range and quality of surface scatter evidence which in conjunction with historical sources provide a sound basis for the understanding of human settlement and land use patterns in Barton Bendish from the Iron Age to the seventeenth century In addition the two fieldwalking programmes close geographically but very different in scale and intensity make an interesting contrast in both methodology and results when presented side by side
