

The First Bicycles

The very first bicycles had no pedals at all. People made them go by pushing along the ground with their feet. A Frenchman called de Sivrac made the first recognized bicycle (also around 1790). His bicycle looked like a rocking horse with wheels instead of tracks.

Nearly 50 years later, in Germany, Karl von Drais made a machine that looked much more like the bicycle we know. It had a front wheel that could be turned for steering (although Sivrac's could too), but it still had to be pushed along with the feet. This machine was called the draisienne, or hobbyhorse, or velocipede, and it was quite popular in France and England for a few years.

Pedals on the hobbyhorse

One of the first people to put pedals on a hobbyhorse was a Scottish blacksmith called Kirkpatrick Macmillan. Around 1840, he made a bicycle which also worked by pushing pedals backwards and forwards. Macmillan used a chain, but no one else seemed very interested at the time.

The bicycle industry begins

The bicycle industry really began 20 years later when two American put pedals and pedals on the front wheel of a hobbyhorse. The new machine seemed a lot of fun, and the two men, Pierre Michaux and his son Ernest, became well established as bicycle manufacturers.

Unfortunately, Pierre's business abilities did not match his mechanical skills. By 1870 he had sold his business to the Olivers, brothers who were continuing to make and sell bicycles under his main name (which he had agreed not to do). The pair said that his business had gone down financially and mentally and he died in 1880.

The craze for hobbyhorses

People became wildly enthusiastic about hobbyhorses when it was introduced to Paris in 1817.

There is always someone who is ready to make fun of a new craze. George Leveillé, who was a well-known cartoonist of the time, was making fun of hobbyhorses when he drew these pictures. The drawings show a type of hobbyhorse in each week's issue of 1817.

1. The Michaux pedal bicycle. Pierre Michaux was inspiring a revolution for someone when he thought of putting pedals on the front wheel to make it easier to ride. His son Ernest did this and found that it worked, so they started making pedal bicycles for sale.

2. A hubcap. The rider can put his feet up when standing there safely. This is necessary because the pedals always go round.

3. The saddle is weighted underneath, so that the rider stays in the right seat.

4. Brakes, which is worked by twisting the handlebars.

5. Chain cable, attached to the front gear and the handlebars at the other.

6. Wheel to turn the rider on and off.

7. Chain, joining pedal to wheel.

4. Kirkpatrick Macmillan's pedal bicycle. Macmillan was inspired by the Michaux bicycle - a bicycle of 1840 - to make his own. It was probably made from iron, because the people had to be pushed backwards and forwards at the time. But Macmillan was used to pushing an ordinary machine along with his feet, so he probably did not notice.

The Invention of Bicycles & Motorcycles Derek Roberts, Gordon C. Davies, 1975 An Alternative History of Bicycles and Motorcycles Steven E. Alford, Suzanne Ferriss, 2016 An Alternative History of Bicycles and Motorcycles Two wheeled Transportation and Material Culture accounts for the nineteenth century creation and development of two wheeled vehicles both human powered and motorized Specifically the book focuses on the period from 1885 which saw the appearance simultaneously of the Safety bicycle and the Einspur the first motorcycle to 1920 while exploring implications for later bicycling and motorcycling We argue that invention of these vehicles rather than the product of gifted individuals should be seen as the consequence of a number of historical economic cultural and political forces that intersect so unpredictably that the notion of a genius inventor is reductive The common evolutionary model of development from the bicycle to the motorcycle oversimplifies both the technology and its origins Stripping the vehicles of all their material and cultural associations such a model fails to advance our understanding of the devices their creators and their riders Taking a contemporary vehicle and tracing its lineage creates a false sense of evolutionary necessity in its creation and fails to account for the many possible developmental paths that were for whatever reason abandoned By contrast our book adopts a material culture approach a form of inquiry that stresses the connections between artifacts and social relations We consider not simply the bicycle and motorcycle as material objects but focus also on the complex socio political and economic convergences that produced the materials materials that in turn themselves shaped the vehicles appearance function and adoption by riders Biography of the Bike Chris Boardman, 2015-06-22 From the velocipede era to today s high tech bikes dive into the history of the bicycle Former Olympic cycling gold medalist and world record holder Chris Boardman is among the most influential bicycle designers in the world In Biography of the Bike he examines the evolution of the modern bicycle from the invention of pedals to recent innovations in electronic gearing The complete stories of each development such as the modern derailleur that have helped to move bike design forward and how those inventions became established in the general marketplace are laid out in all their fascinating detail Complete with profiles of the riders and designers who have been at the forefront of bicycle design over the decades the book also examines cultural trends such as bicycle commuting and mountain biking that have spurred advances in design Early efforts at aerodynamic design the standardization of the double diamond frame and the introduction of disc wheels allow you to see the entire history of your favorite two wheeled transport Heavily illustrated with photos of bikes equipment close ups and historical action shots of famous cyclists such as Greg Lemond Jan Ullrich and Fausto Coppi make this a book that no biking enthusiast gearhead or racing fan will want to miss History of the Motorcycle Roland Brown, 2004 Specifications and Drawings of Patents Issued from the United States Patent Office for ... , 1872 The History of Motor Cycling Cyril Ayton, 1983 The History and Development of Motorcycles Cyril Francis Caunter, Science Museum (Great Britain), 1955 A Short
