Sorting Things Out Classification And Its Consequences:

Sorting Things Out Geoffrey C. Bowker, Susan Leigh Star, 2000-08-25 A revealing and surprising look at how classification systems can shape both worldviews and social interactions. What do a seventeenth century mortality table whose causes of death include fainted in a bath, frightened and itch the identification of South Africans during apartheid as European, Asian, colored or black and the separation of machine from hand washables have in common? All are examples of classification, the scaffolding of information infrastructures. In Sorting Things Out Geoffrey C. Bowker and Susan Leigh Star explore the role of categories and standards in shaping the modern world. In a clear and lively style they investigate a variety of classification systems including the International Classification of Diseases, the Nursing Interventions Classification, race classification under apartheid in South Africa and the classification of viruses and of tuberculosis. The authors emphasize the role of invisibility in the process by which classification orders human interaction. They examine how categories are made and kept invisible and how people can change this invisibility when necessary. They also explore systems of classification as part of the built information environment. Much as an urban historian would review highway permits and zoning decisions to tell a city's story, the authors review archives of classification design to understand how decisions have been made. Sorting Things Out has a moral agenda for each standard and category: it valorizes some point of view and silences another. Standards and classifications produce advantage or suffering. Jobs are made and lost; some regions benefit at the expense of others. How these choices are made and how we think about that process are at the moral and political core of this work. The book is an important empirical source for understanding the building of information infrastructures.

Thurtle,2011-06-01 The emergence of genetic science has profoundly shaped how we think about biology Indeed it is difficult now to consider nearly any facet of human experience without first considering the gene But this mode of understanding life is not of course transhistorical Phillip Thrtle takes us back to the moment just before the emergence of genetic rationality at the turn of the twentieth century to explicate the technological economic cultural and even narrative transformations necessary to make genetic thinking possible The rise of managerial capitalism brought with it an array of homologous practices all of which transformed the social fabric With transformations in political economy and new technologies came new conceptions of biology and it is in the relationships of social class to breeding practices of middle managers to biological information processing and of transportation to experiences of space and time that we can begin to locate the conditions that made genetic thinking possible desirable and seemingly natural In describing this historical moment The Emergence of Genetic Rationality is panoramic in scope addressing primary texts that range from horse breeding manuals to eugenics treatises natural history tables to railway surveys and novels to personal diaries It draws on the work of figures as diverse as Thorstein Veblen Jack London Edith Wharton William James and Luther Burbank The central figure David Starr Jordan naturalist poet eugenicist educator provides the book with a touchstone for deciphering the mode of rationality that genetics superseded Building on continental philosophy media studies systems theory and theories of narrative The Emergence of Genetic Rationality provides an inter disciplinary contribution to intellectual and scientific history science studies and cultural studies It offers a truly encyclopedic cultural history that challenges our own ways of organizing knowledge even as it explicates those of an earlier era In a time in which genetic rationality has become our own common sense this discussion of its emergence reminds us of the interdependence of the tools we use to process information and the conceptions of life they animate     The Organization of Information Daniel N. Joudrey,Arlene G. Taylor,2017-11-27 This fourth edition provides an updated look at information organization featuring coverage of the Semantic Web linked data and EAC CPF new metadata models such as IFLA LRM and RiC and new perspectives on RDA and its implementation This latest edition of The Organization of Information is a key resource for anyone in the beginning stages of their LIS career as well as longstanding professionals and paraprofessionals seeking accurate clear and up to date guidance on information organization activities across the discipline The book begins with a historical look at information organization methods covering libraries archives museums and online settings It then addresses the types of retrieval tools used throughout the discipline catalogs finding aids indexes bibliographies and search engines before describing the functionality of systems explaining the basic principles of system design and defining how they affect information organization The principles and functionality of metadata is next with coverage of the types functions tools and models particularly FRBR IFLA LRM RDF and how encoding works for use and sharing for example MARC XML schemas and linked data approaches The latter portion of the resource describes specific activities related to the creation of metadata for resources These chapters offer an overview of the major issues challenges and standards used in the information professions addressing topics such as resource description including standards found in RDA DACS and CCO access points authority control subject analysis controlled vocabularies notably LCSH MeSH Sears and AAT and categorization systems such as DDC and LCC

Education by the Numbers and the Making of Society Sverker Lindblad,Daniel Pettersson,Thomas S. Popkewitz,2018-03-19 International statistical comparisons of nations have become commonplace in the contemporary landscape of education policy and social science This book discusses the emergence of these international comparisons as a particular style of reasoning about education society and science By examining how international educational assessments have come to dominate much of contemporary policymaking concerning school system performance the authors provide concrete case studies highlighting the preeminent role of numbers in furthering neoliberal education reform Demonstrating how numbers serve as rationales to shape and fashion social issues this text opens new avenues for thinking about institutional and epistemological factors that produce and shape educational policy research and schooling in transnational contexts
