This book gives a detailed lavishly illustrated and thoroughly researched description of the biodiversity and natural history of what is by several measures the most significant site for ancient oaks in Europe. It draws together the expertise of more than 60 specialists and reports on the results of in-depth surveys of High Park. Chapters cover different groups including flora including bryophytes, fungi, lichens, molluscs, arachnids, flies, hymenoptera, butterflies, moths, beetles, with a special focus on saproxylic species, bugs, reptiles, and amphibians, birds, and mammals. Despite their undoubtedly importance, very few sites with ancient oaks in England are the most important European country for these magnificent trees have seen a comprehensive published account adding to the value of this study. Several of the contributing authors describe their survey techniques in some detail, some of which are not widely known.
