Alternative Food Networks for Sustainable, Just, Resilient and Productive Food Systems José Luis

Vicente-Vicente,Lukas Egli,Felix Zoll,Simona Zollet,2024-10-01 There is growing evidence that the current globalised agri food system is neither sustainable nor resilient It is responsible for around one third of the global GHG emissions and is a major driver of biodiversity loss Furthermore its structure and distribution mode do not provide food security for all and foster socio economic inequalities between different parts of the planet Consequently an increasing number of scientists and members of the civil society are demanding a radical transformation of agri food systems The creation of alternative food networks AFNs represent a possible first step towards agri food system transformation AFNs can incorporate local indigenous and innovative knowledge and bring together a diversity of actors to connect food production and consumption and create new practices and relationships around food The creation of AFNs and ultimately of Alternative Food Systems AFS should involve different actors from farmers to social movements from policymakers to scientists AFNs have the potential to contribute to a transformation towards sustainable just resilient and productive food systems but even though they have increased in numbers and organisational forms in recent years they still remain in a niche Consequently scientific evidence of their performance is still limited This research topic will contribute to a comprehensive multi scalar and critical e g including potential counter effects understanding of the current state and future potential of AFNs It will address multiple aspects ranging from social economic and environmental aspects to productivity participation and justice Moreover it will highlight the role of governance power relations and institutions as well as barriers and ways forward to promote AFNs and their role in food system transformation

The Incoherence of Human Rights in International Law Louisa Ashley,Nicolette Butler,2024-09-02

Incoherence is a term that is all too often associated with the public international law regime To a great extent its incoherence is arguably a natural consequence of the fragmented nature of both the development and overall scope of the discipline Despite significant achievements since the Universal Declaration of Human Rights 1948 a coherent human rights regime that is properly integrated with other branches of public international law is still lacking This book explores this incoherent approach to human rights including specific challenges that arise as a result of the creation and regulation of legal relationships between parties state and non state that sit outside of the human rights framework with a view to considering how it may be remedied Divided into three parts the collection provides a critical exploration of various challenges and barriers related to the absence of human rights in some instances contemporary emergence of rights and a lack of rights fulfilment in others These three situations are considered within the wider context of and difficulties facing a human rights based approach to international law Each of the three parts aligns with one of the three prime responsibilities and duties of states in respect of international human rights to promote to protect and to fulfil The contributions represent different perspectives in international law and human rights and how the global agenda of promoting human rights the rules based international order and multilateralism requires further strengthening the lens of incoherence providing a means to understand particular inconsistencies Chapters focus upon subjects including international investment law international financial contracts the arms trade indigenous peoples rights rights of peasants the right to a clean healthy and sustainable environment the right to food and transitional justice Presenting a critical exploration of key contemporary challenges and the implementation of human rights law in different contexts the collection will be of interest to a wide ranging audience of international law and international relations scholars and practitioners and students of law politics and globalisation across the world
