The Of The Dead And The Of The Resurrection:

Did Jesus Rise From the Dead? Gary R. Habermas, Antony Flew, Terry L. Miethe, 2003-12-04 This is the most important question regarding the claims of the Christian faith. Certainly no question in modern religious history demands more attention or interest as witnessed by the vast body of literature dealing with the Resurrection. James I Packer says it well in his response to this debate: When Christians are asked to make good their claim that this scheme is truth, they point to Jesus' resurrection. The Easter event so they affirm demonstrated Jesus' deity, validated his teaching, attested to the completion of his work of atonement for sin, confirms his present cosmic dominion and coming reappearance as Judge, assures us that his personal pardon presence and power in people's lives today is fact and guarantees each believer's own reembodiment by Resurrection in the world to come. The Apostle Paul considered the Resurrection to be the cornerstone of the Christian faith. If Jesus did not rise from the dead, the whole structure Christianity collapses. Paul tells us in 1 Corinthians 15:14-17: And if Christ has not been raised, our preaching is useless and so is your faith. More than that, we are then found to be false witnesses about God. And if Christ has not been raised, your faith is futile. emphasis added. The Christian faith and its claim to be Truth exists only if Jesus rose from the dead. The heart of Christianity is a living Christ.

The Resurrection of the Dead

William Hanna, 1873 The Resurrection of the Dead Karl Barth, 2003-10-07 Karl Barth saw Chapter 15 as the center of 1st Corinthians, arguing that a misunderstanding of the resurrection underlies all the problems in Corinth. In this volume he develops his view of biblical eschatology, asserting that Chapter 15 is key to understanding the testimony of the New Testament.

Barth understood the last things not as an end to history but as an end history with which any period is faced. He only speaks of last things who would speak of the end of all things of their end understood plainly and fundamentally of a reality so radically superior to all things that the existence of all things would be utterly and entirely based upon it alone and thus in speaking of their end he would in truth be speaking of nothing else than their beginning. Page 104 Debates over the Resurrection of the Dead Outi Lehtipuu, 2015-02-12 In Debates over the Resurrection of the Dead Outi Lehtipuu highlights the striking observation that in many early texts the way that belief in resurrection is formulated is used as a sign of inclusion and exclusion not only in relation to non-Christians but vis-à-vis other Christians. Those who teach otherwise have deviated from the truth are not true Christians and do the works of the devil. Using insights from the sociological study of deviance Dr Lehtipuu demonstrates that labelling was used as a tool for marking boundaries between those who belonged and those who did not. This was extremely important in the fluid conditions where the small Christian minority groups found themselves. In a situation where there were no universally accepted structures that defined what constituted the true Christian belief, several competing interpretations and their representatives struggled for recognition of their views based on what they believed to be the apostolic tradition. The most hotly debated aspect of resurrection was whether it would entail the body of flesh and blood or not. When resurrection would take place was closely related to this.

Controversies died since the scriptural legacy was ambiguous enough to allow different hermeneutical solutions The battle over resurrection was closely related to the question of how scriptures were to be understood as well as to what constituted the human self that would survive death To demonstrate this a wide variety of texts are studied from theological treatises including relevant Nag Hammadi texts to apocryphal acts and martyrologies Acknowledging the complexity and diversity of the early Christian movement this volume views early Christian discourse as part of the broader ancient discursive world where similar debates were going on among both Jews and the majority population

C. D. Elledge, 2017-05-05 Resurrection of the dead represents one of the more enigmatic beliefs of Western religions to many modern readers In this volume C D Elledge offers an interpretation of some of the earliest literature within Judaism that exhibits a confident hope in resurrection He not only aids the study of early Jewish literature itself but expands contemporary knowledge of some of the earliest expressions of a hope that would become increasingly meaningful in later Judaism Christianity and Islam Elledge focuses on resurrection in the latest writings of the Hebrew Bible the Apocrypha Pseudepigrapha Dead Sea Scrolls as well as the writings of other Hellenistic Jewish authors He also incorporates later rabbinic writings early Christian sources and inscriptions as they shed additional light upon select features of the evidence in question This allows for a deeper look into how particular literary works utilized the discourse of resurrection while also retaining larger comparative insights into what these materials may teach us about the gradual flourishing of resurrection within its early Jewish environment Individual chapters balance a more categorical comparative approach to the problems raised by resurrection definitions diverse conceptions historical origins strategies of legitimization with a more specific focus on particular pieces of the early Jewish evidence 1 Enoch Dead Sea Scrolls Josephus Resurrection of the Dead in Early Judaism 200 BCE CE 200 provides a treatment of resurrection that informs the study of early Jewish theologies as well as their later reinterpretations within Rabbinic Judaism and Christianity
