Word Steffen Wöll,2020-10-12 Western expansion in North America has mainly been described as either a linear sequence energized by nineteenth century nation building processes at a moving frontier or as the practice of settler colonialism and its exploitation of resources and displacement of nonwhite peoples This book suggests that shifting the focus from this binary pattern towards spatial imaginations and spatialization processes a new theoretical framework developed at SFB 1199 provides novel insights into the placemaking dynamics of the American West It brings to light a discursive diversity that often contradicts unidirectional interpretive patterns It becomes clear that while some discourses solidified into spatial metanarratives like the character shaping clash of civilizations at the frontier or manifest destiny alternative spatial imaginations exist juxtaposed to or obfuscated by canonical interpretations Making use of a variety of sources including works of literature poetry newspapers paintings and speeches to access spatialization processes on several sociocultural scales the book presents a careful exploration of the parameters that informed the creation affirmation and subversion of spatial imagination of the American West throughout the nineteenth century from the perspective of American Studies

The Political Economy of the Family Farm Sue Headlee,1991-11-30 Agriculture played an important role in the transition to capitalism in the United States in the mid nineteenth century In her study Sue Headlee argues that the family farm system with its progressive nature and egalitarian class structure revolutionized this transition to capitalism The family farm is examined in light of its economic and political implications showing the relationship between the family farm and fledgling industrial capitalism a relationship that fostered the simultaneous industrial and agricultural revolutions and the creation of an agro industrial complex Headlee focuses on the adoption of the horse drawn mechanical reaper to harvest wheat by family farmers in the 1850s The neoclassical economic explanation with its emphasis on the farm as a profit maximizing firm is criticized for its lack of recognition of the role of the family farm s egalitarian class structure This look at the economic history of the United States has lessons for the Third World today agricultural development is vital to the transition to capitalism the agrarian class structures of Third World countries may be holding back that transition and a family farm land reform approach would lead to increases in productivity and in the material well being of society Headlee's analysis supports three important debates in political economy thus providing the historical and theoretical context for understanding the role of agriculture in the transition to capitalism in general and in the particular case of the United States Her findings conclude that agrarian class structures can explain the differential patterns of development in pre industrial Europe Further evidence is presented that the internal class structure of agrarian society is the crucial causal factor in the transition to capitalism and that market developments alone are not sufficient Lastly and most controversially Headlee acknowledges the importance of the Civil War in propelling the triumph of American capitalism allowing the Republican Party an alliance of family farmers and industrial capitalists to take control of the state from the Democratic Party of the southern plantation owners This book will be of interest to scholars in political economy economic history agrarian economics and development economics
