Robinson,2012-12-06 One of the points clearly stressed in the beginning of this book is that the essential feature of any dynamic system is change and that where there is change there may also be growth and evolution Plant breeding and plant protection have grown and evolved considerably during the past century they have also witnessed several important Hegelian changes This book by R A Robinson is just such a change in scientific thinking It is unique in presenting an entirely new insight to plant parasite relationships and in providing a practical guide for managing plant pathosystems for man s advantage in agriculture The author brings together for the first time in a holistic manner the various plant protection and breeding disciplines he analyses their past limitations and deficiencies and throws useful new light on the nature of parasitism From this he is able to gain a clear understanding of the functions of the various pathosystem components On the basis of this understanding he then proposes practical ways for using these components to achieve and maintain the type of balance which is the basis of survival in any evolutionary system including that of man himself All this is done in a lively and elegant manner using logic as the main driving force to elucidate and define entirely new concepts without obtruse mathematical or biochemical formulae Agriculture in Semi-Arid Environments A.E. Hall, G.H. Cannell, H.W. Lawton, 2012-12-06 The semi arid zones of the world are fragile ecosystems which are being substantially modified by the activities of mankind Increasing human populations have resulted in greater demands on semi arid zones for providing human sustenance and the possibility that this may enhance desertification is a grave concern These zones are harsh habitats for humans The famines that resulted from drought during the late 1960s and the 1970s in the African Sahel illustrated the unreliability of present agricultural systems in this zone Large fluctuations in agricultural production have occurred in semi arid zones of Australia North America and the Soviet Union due to periodic droughts even though considerable agricultural technology has been devoted to agricultural development in these zones The challenge to mankind is to manage these different semi arid zones so that productivity is increased and stabilized and environmental deterioration is decreased Irrigation can be used to increase and stabilize agricultural production in semi arid zones as discussed in Volume 5 of this series Arid Zone Irrigation The present volume Agriculture in Semi Arid Environments focuses on dryland farming in semi arid zones and is relevant to the large areas of the world where rainfall is limiting and where water is not available for irrigation This volume is designed to assist agricultural development in these areas and consists of reviews and analyses of available information by scientists working in Africa Australia and at the University of California

Energy and Agriculture G. Stanhill, 2012-12-06 Energy and agriculture are both extremely broad subjects and their interactions the subject of this book cover almost the full spectrum of the agricultural sciences Yet the subject is a relatively new one whose importance first received widespread recognition barely a decade ago following the dramatic increase in oil prices during 1973 The impact of this increase was such as to promote a world wide debate on the future direction that agriculture should take This debate was and is of particular concern in countries where agriculture plays a leading role in economic and social development During the last half century many national agricultural systems have been transformed from almost closed self sufficient systems with few locally produced inputs geared to satisfy local requirements to intensive open systems utilizing large quantities of energy rich inputs such as fossil fuel for manufactured agro chemicals water distribution and imported animal feedstuffs to produce a range of sophisticated products often for export which in turn require many energy rich inputs for their marketing This industrialization of agriculture has proved to be very successful in many respects and indeed was accepted as a general model for agricultural development allowing increased productivity and efficiency per unit land labor and water even in areas with limited natural resources Books in Series, 1985 Vols for 1980 issued in three parts Series Authors and Titles Feeding Beef Cattle J.K. Matsushima, 2013-11-11 The purpose of this book is to provide the reader with some basic information applicable to cattle feeding It is intended to adapt some of the basic principles of nutrition in applied form During the past few decades there have been various changes in type and form of feeds available for livestock feeding due to new kinds of equipment Mechanization has made it possible to perform certain operations of the beef production program more efficiently and economically With all the new innovations and advances in animal nutrition combined with the capabilities of the computer it becomes very challenging for everyone to keep up to date on the latest information in the field of cattle feeding and production The text was written with the intent of utilizing the raw materials facilities equipment etc which are available in the United States The terminology of certain materials such as feed ingredients will vary from one country to another One term which is frequently used in this text is forage Although the term roughage is used more commonly in the United States it has been replaced with forage in this text J K MATSUSHIMA Fort Collins January 1979 Contents Chapter 1 Nutrients 1 Proximate Feed Analysis 1 Chemical Classification of Nutrients 2 1 1 Water 3 1 1 1 Drinking Water     Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1984     Books in Print Supplement ,1994
