Sir Edward Newenham Mp 1734-1814 Defender Of The Protestant Constitut:

Sir Edward Newenham, MP, 1734-1814 James Kelly,2004 Propagandist popular politician conservative reactionary Edward Newenham excited sharply different responses during his lifetime He was encouraged by his admiration for Charles Lucas in Ireland and John Wilkes in England to take up the issue of parliamentary reform and by his support for the cause of the American colonists to become one of the warmest advocates of American independence from Britain this side of the Atlantic during the American Revolution His admiration for the American cause brought him into contact with Benjamin Franklin who aspired to recruit him to the American cause George Washington John Jay and the marquis of Lafayette who introduced him to the court of Louis XVI though Britain and France were at war Their surviving correspondences provide one of the main sources for this study and they show clearly that Newenham did not as some contemporaries believed ever engage in treasonable activity His commitment throughout his political life was to uphold the Protestant constitution and it is this commitment that allows one to make sense of a life that saw him make a significant contribution as a reforming revenue officer as a prolific and outspoken propagandist as a popular MP for County Dublin for more than twenty years as a Volunteer officer and finally as a conservative ideologue who supported the Act of Union and opposed Catholic relief He was also a devoted husband and father to eighteen children until his mismanagement of his inheritance largely on the construction of Belcamp Hall in north County Dublin precipitated him on an economic roller coaster that caused him to spend a spell in a debtors prison He died in genteel poverty but he remained until the end a representative voice of that strong strand of Protestant opinion that believed utterly in the merits of a Protestant constitution

Irish Artisans and Radical Politics, 1776-1820

Timothy Murtagh,2022-10-15 Irish Artisans and Radical Politics 1776 1820 Apprenticeship to Revolution is a comparative study of the political activities of workers in three Irish cities Dublin Belfast and Cork It investigates how Ireland s journeymen and apprentices engaged in campaigns for political reform as well as in revolutionary conspiracies during the years 1776 to 1820 This book marks the first ever attempt to analyse the role of Irish workers in the creation of eighteenth century republicanism representing the careful distillation of nearly a decade of research on the topic It argues that Irish craftsmen truly did serve an apprenticeship to revolution In the literal sense the experience of the workshop provided artisans with a set of traditions which shaped how new revolutionary doctrines were received But generations of Irish workers also served a figurative apprenticeship to successive political movements the campaigns of Irish Patriot MPs the Volunteering movement of the 1770s and the revolutionary campaigns of the United Irishmen The book explores the role of urban workers within the 1798 Irish Rebellion and Robert Emmet s 1803 rising and adopting a transnational framework places the actions of these Irish artisans within the context of British radicalism and the creation of an industrial working class

Grattan's Failure Danny Mansergh,2005 Throws new light on the underlying causes of the 1798 rebellion and 1800 Act of Union by examining the connection between parliamentary and extra parliamentary agitation between 1779 and 1800 Despite the title the book is not biographical but centres upon aspects of the ideology and political practice of Henry Grattan This is because it is contended that Grattan was the Irish MP most deeply and frequently involved in manipulating popular movements in this period contrary to the prevailing historiographical and biographical portraits of him as a strictly constitutional statesman His vision of the Irish constitution included both broad popular participation and through it effective as well as theoretical legislative independence hence his pivotal position within the study It is argued that the existing histories have understated the importance of his role along with that of his parliamentary collaborators in sowing the ideological seeds of an attempted revolution and in personally encouraging extra parliamentary agitation He is popularly credited as the founder of the independent Irish constitution of 1782 1800 but he also played a part in its destruction
