Sita's Daughters:

Sita's Daughters Leigh Minturn, 1993 Sita's Daughters vividly recounts the dramatic changes in role and status experienced by Rajput caste women in the Indian village Khalapur between 1955 and 1975. In the 20 years between her now classic original field study and her follow up with the same families Leigh Minturn witnessed a significant decline in the women's observance of a complex system of customs collectively called purdah which includes the wearing of veils, silence in the presence of senior men and women, the adoption of subservient postures when speaking to men and the separation of husbands and wives. Her interviews with mothers and daughters in law reveal how changes in purdah customs and religious traditions have allowed them increased access to education and health facilities, control of finances and autonomy inside and mobility outside of their husbands' households. This work is unprecedented in its depth, scope and exposition of the intimate details of the lives of Indian women. Minturn's return to her original subjects allowed her to observe firsthand the changes that had transpired during the interim, resulting in the only Indian village field study to span two generations. Having won the trust and confidence of her subjects, the author poignantly conveys their individuality along with their stories of heroism, loyalty, infidelity, rape, incest, theft and even murder. With even handedness and detailed scholarship, Minturn makes use of methods such as systematic sampling and structured interviewing that are effective in capturing the richness of Indian village life, though they are uncommon in anthropological studies. The wide range of issues addressed here will be of interest to students and researchers in women's studies, South Asian studies, anthropology and cross cultural psychology, as well as to interested laypersons. Dharma's Daughters Sara S. Mitter, 1992 Daughters of the Earth Smita Tewari Jassal, 2001. This study adopts a two pronged approach using historical and participatory methods to analyse the processes by which women have been denied land for ages. The concerns of the Naugarh, a remote forest region of Chanduli District near Varanasi, women expressed during a workshop form the crux of the study. The Indian Law Reports, Allahabad Series, 1880 Daughters of the Ocean Shobita Punja, 1996 Manushi, 2005 The Open Court, 1890 Gender and Social Equity in Primary Education Vimala Ramachandran, 2004-08-19. In recent years India has made impressive strides in increasing literacy rates and in enabling access to education. The country now seems well set to provide universal and good quality basic education. Yet behind this otherwise rosy picture lie serious concerns relating primarily to gender and equity. This volume provides an insightful understanding of the ground realities of primary education programmes, particularly those run by the District Primary Education Programme (DPEP). Combining secondary research with field studies conducted in six states, the contributors explore gender and social equity issues in primary education. They conclude that there is a subtle but nevertheless discernible hierarchy of access to education which has resulted in new forms of segregation in primary schools.
