

The Goblet

*ONCE I held a well-carved brimming goblet, --
In my two hands tightly clasp'd I held it,
Eagerly the sweet wine sipp'd I from it,
Seeking there to drown all care and sorrow.*

*Amor enter'd in, and found me sitting,
And he gently smiled in modest fashion,
Smiled as though the foolish one he pitied.*

*"Friend, I know a far more beauteous vessel,
One wherein to sink thy spirit wholly;
Say, what wilt thou give me, if I grant it,
And with other nectar fill it for thee?"*

*Oh, how kindly hath he kept his promise!
For to me, who long had yearn'd, he granted
Thee, my Lida, fill'd with soft affection.*

*When I clasp mine arms around thee fondly,
When I drink in love's long-hoarded balsam
From thy darling lips so true, so faithful,
Fill'd with bliss thus speak I to my spirit
"No! a vessel such as this, save Amor
Never god hath fashion'd or been lord of!
Such a form was ne'er produced by Vulcan
With his cunning, reason-gifted hammers!
On the leaf-crown'd mountains may Lyaeus
Bid his Fauns, the oldest and the wisest,
Pass the choicest clusters through the winepress,
And himself watch o'er the fermentation:
Such a draught no toil can e'er procure him!"*

The Poems of Goethe Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, 1881 The Poems of Goethe: Translated in the Original Metres Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, 2020-09-28 I feel no small reluctance in venturing to give to the public a work of the character of that indicated by the title page to the present volume for difficult as it must always be to render satisfactorily into one's own tongue the writings of the bards of other lands the responsibility assumed by the translator is immeasurably increased when he attempts to transfer the thoughts of those great men who have lived for all the world and for all ages from the language in which they were originally clothed to one to which they may as yet have been strangers Preeminently is this the case with Goethe the most masterly of all the master minds of modern times whose name is already inscribed on the tablets of immortality and whose fame already extends over the earth although as yet only in its infancy Scarcely have two decades passed away since he ceased to dwell among men yet he now stands before us not as a mere individual like those whom the world is wont to call great but as a type as an emblem the recognised emblem and representative of the human mind in its present stage of culture and advancement Among the infinitely varied effusions of Goethe's pen perhaps there are none which are of as general interest as his Poems which breathe the very spirit of Nature and embody the real music of the feelings In Germany they are universally known and are considered as the most delightful of his works Yet in this country this kindred country sprung from the same stem and so strongly resembling her sister in so many points they are nearly unknown Almost the only poetical work of the greatest Poet that the world has seen for ages that is really and generally read in England is Faust the translations of which are almost endless while no single person has as yet appeared to attempt to give in an English dress in any collective or systematic manner those smaller productions of the genius of Goethe which it is the object of the present volume to lay before the reader whose indulgence is requested for its many imperfections In addition to the beauty of the language in which the Poet has given utterance to his thoughts there is a depth of meaning in those thoughts which is not easily discoverable at first sight and the translator incurs great risk of overlooking it and of giving a prosaic effect to that which in the original contains the very essence of poetry It is probably this difficulty that has deterred others from undertaking the task I have set myself and in which I do not pretend to do more than attempt to give an idea of the minstrelsy of one so unrivalled by as truthful an interpretation of it as lies in my power Selected Poetry

Goethe, 2005-04-28 Shall I embrace you must I let you go Again you haunt me come then hold me fast Goethe viewed the writing of poetry as essentially autobiographical and the works selected in this volume represent over sixty years in the life of the poet In early poems such as Prometheus he rails against religion in an almost ecstatic fervour while To the Moon is an enigmatic meditation on the end of a love affair The Roman Elegies show Goethe's use of Classical metres in homage to ancient Rome and its poets and The Diary suppressed for more than a century is a narrative poem whose eroticism is unusually combined with its morality Arranged chronologically David Luke's verse translations are set alongside the German originals to give a picture of Goethe's poetic development. This edition also includes an introduction and notes placing the poems in the context of the poet's life and times. The Poems of Goethe Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, 2016-07-12 Johann Wolfgang von Goethe was a prominent German author, poet, and statesman. Goethe's poetry, novels, and plays are all considered some of the finest in literature, and his popularity has not waned since his death in 1832. This collection includes many of Goethe's greatest poems. Poems of Goethe Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, 1957 Following his previous translation of one hundred of Goethe's poems in this volume, Zeydel presents translations of a selection of Goethe's shorter poems, the majority of which were written in the last twenty years of his life. The translator gives careful attention to details of substance, form, and style, and to the spirit of the original, reproducing the simplicity and naturalness of language so characteristic of Goethe. The original text in German appears on facing pages. The Poems of Goethe Edgar Alfred Bowring, 2018-02-05 This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it. The biographical introduction traces Goethe's development as seen in his poems, and an appendix gives information on musical settings to the poems. Selected Poems Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, 1994 The Eternal Feminine Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, 1980 The Poems of Goethe Goethe, 1883 The Poems of Goethe Edgar Alfred Bowring, 2015-07-07 Excerpt from The Poems of Goethe Translated in the Original Metres. My Dear Lady Granville, The reluctance which must naturally be felt by any one in venturing to give to the world a book such as the present, where the beauties of the great original must inevitably be diminished if not destroyed in the process of passing through the translator's hands, cannot but be felt in all its force when that translator has not penetrated beyond the outer courts of the poetic fane and can have no hope of advancing further or of reaching its sanctuary. But it is to me a subject of peculiar satisfaction that your kind permission to have your name inscribed upon this page serves to attain a twofold end, one direct and personal, and relating to the present day, the other reflected and historical, and belonging to times long gone by. Of the first, little need now be said; for the privilege is wholly mine in making this dedication, as to the second, one word of explanation will suffice for

The Poems of Goethe Goethe, 2015-11-19 The morn arrived his footstep quickly scared The gentle sleep that round my senses clung And I awak ning from my cottage fared And up the mountain side with light heart sprung At every step I felt my gaze ensnared By new born flow rs that full of dew drops hung The youthful day awoke with ecstasy And all things quicken d were to quicken me And as I mounted from the valley rose A streaky mist that upward slowly spread Then bent as though my form it would enclose Then as on pinions soar d above my head My gaze could now on no fair view repose in mournful veil conceal d the world seem d dead The clouds soon closed around me as a tomb And I was left alone in twilight gloom At once the sun his lustre seem d to pour And through the mist was seen a radiant light Here sank it gently to the ground once more There parted it and climb d o er wood and height How did I yearn to greet him as of yore After the darkness waxing doubly bright The airy conflict oft-times was renewed Then blinded by a dazzling glow I stood Ere long an inward impulse prompted me A hasty glance with boldness round to throw At first mine eyes had scarcely strength to see For all around appeared to burn and glow Then saw I on the clouds borne gracefully A godlike woman hovering to and fro
