John Ruskin

The Poetry Of Architecture:

The Poetry of Architecture John Ruskin, 2019-02-28 The Science of Architecture followed out to its full extent is one of the noblest of those which have reference only to the creations of human minds It is not merely a science of the rule and compass it does not consist only in the observation of just rule or of fair proportion it is or ought to be a science of feeling more than of rule a ministry to the mind more than to the eye If we consider how much less the beauty and majesty of a building depend upon its pleasing certain prejudices of the eye than upon its rousing certain trains of meditation in the mind it will show in a moment how many intricate questions of feeling are involved in the raising of an edifice it will convince us of the truth of a proposition which might at first have appeared startling that no man can be an architect who is not a metaphysician The Poetry of Architecture John Ruskin, 1920 The Poetry of Architecture John Ruskin, 2015-06-15 The Poetry of Architecture from John Ruskin English art critic of the Victorian era 1819 1900 The Poetry of Architecture - Cottage, Villa, Etc - To Which Is Added Suggestions on Works of Art John Ruskin, 2010-09-27 Many of the earliest books particularly those dating back to the 1900s and before are now extremely scarce and increasingly expensive We are republishing these classic works in affordable high quality modern editions using the original text and artwork The Poetry Of Architecture John Ruskin, 2008-06-01 This scarce antiquarian book is a facsimile reprint of the original Due to its age it may contain imperfections such as marks notations marginalia and flawed pages Because we believe this work is culturally important we have made it available as part of our commitment for protecting preserving and promoting the world s literature in affordable high quality modern editions that are true to the original work The Poetry of Architecture John Ruskin, 1986 The Poetry of Architecture John Ruskin, 1877 The Poetry of Architecture John Ruskin, 1892 The Poetry of Architecture Or, the Architecture of the Nations of Europe Considered in Its Association with Natural Scenery and National Character John Ruskin, 2016-06-23 Unlike some other reproductions of classic texts 1 We have not used OCR Optical Character Recognition as this leads to bad quality books with introduced typos 2 In books where there are images such as portraits maps sketches etc We have endeavoured to keep the quality of these images so they represent accurately the original artefact Although occasionally there may be certain imperfections with these old texts we feel they deserve to be made available for future generations to enjoy The Poetry of Architecture John Ruskin, 1920 The Poetry of Architecture Frank Rutter, 1900 The Poetry of Architecture John Ruskin, 1885 The Poetry of Architecture ; Poems ; Giotto John Ruskin, 1894 The Poetry of Architecture Or, the Architecture of the Nations of Europe Considered in Its Association with Natural Scenery and National Character John Ruskin, 2017-06-06 INTRODUCTION 1 The Science of Architecture followed out to its full extent is one of the noblest of those which have reference only to the creations of human minds It is not merely a science of the rule and compass it does not consist only in the observation of just rule or of fair proportion it is or ought to be a science of feeling more than of rule a ministry to the mind more than to the eye If we consider how much less the beauty and majesty of a building depend upon its pleasing certain prejudices of the eye than upon its rousing certain trains of meditation in the mind it will show in a moment how many intricate questions of feeling are involved in the raising of an edifice it will convince us of the truth of a proposition which might at first have appeared startling that no man can be an architect who is not a metaphysician 2 To the illustration of the department of this noble science which may be designated the Poetry of Architecture this and some future articles will be dedicated It is this peculiarity of the art which constitutes its nationality and it will be found as interesting as it is useful to trace in the distinctive characters of the architecture of nations not only its adaptation to the situation and climate in which it has arisen but its strong similarity to and connection with the prevailing turn of mind by which the nation who first employed it is distinguished 3 I consider the task I have imposed upon myself the more necessary because this department of the science perhaps regarded by some who have no ideas beyond stone and mortar as chimerical and by others who think nothing necessary but truth and proportion as useless is at a miserably low ebb in England And what is the consequence We have Corinthian columns placed beside pilasters of no order at all surmounted by monstrosified pepper boxes Gothic in form and Grecian in detail in a building nominally and peculiarly National we have Swiss cottages falsely and calumniously so entitled dropped in the brick fields round the metropolis and we have staring square windowed flat roofed gentlemen s seats of the lath and plaster mock magnificent Regent s Park description rising on the woody promontories of Derwentwater 4 How deeply is it to be regretted how much is it to be wondered at that in a country whose school of painting though degraded by its system of meretricious coloring and disgraced by hosts of would be imitators of inimitable individuals is yet raised by the distinguished talent of those individuals to a place of well deserved honor and the studios of whose sculptors are filled with designs of the most pure simplicity and most perfect animation the school of architecture should be so miserably debased
