The Czech Black Book Historický ústav (Československá akademie věd), 1969 This is an hour by hour account of the fall of Czechoslovakia by Warsaw Pact armies in 1968      Sedm Pražských Dnů: 21.-27. Srpen 1968 Robert Littell, 1969      Public Narratives of Decolonization and Racial (In)Justice in Central and Southeast Europe Andrea Průchová Hrůzová, 2026-02-11 This collection of essays examines the spheres of arts culture and digital communication to trace debates that revolve around the notions of decolonization and racial in justice in Central and Southeast Europe It asks how the global narratives of racial and ethnic solidarity find their way into regional contexts How do these narratives activate the present political agenda as well as the historical pasts How are they understood and expressed by professionals like academics artists activists and above all by actors from the lay digital audience The edited volume presents provocative cases of political and cultural debates from Bulgaria Czechia Hungary Poland Romania and Slovenia Individual contributions employ an interdisciplinary framework ranging from memory and media studies to cultural and visual studies They discuss various phenomena from the fields of popular culture visual arts public art and literature as well as the regional examples of Black Lives Matter and Roma Lives Matter movements      The Czech Black Book Historický ústav Československá akademie věd, 1969      Czechoslovakia's Lost Fight for Freedom, 1967-1969 Kenneth N. Skoug, 1999-08-30 This fascinating account by a Czech speaking American diplomat who lived in Czechoslovakia from 1967 1969 describes the collapse of a repressive Communist regime the subsequent unprecedented explosion of popular freedom the surprise Soviet occupation and the spirited passive resistance of the population until the gradual strangulation of the Prague Spring Drawing on his own journal recent memoirs and documentary materials in the National Archives the author shows how American diplomats and senior U S officials analyzed and reacted to ongoing events He explains how reform leader Alexander Dubcek became wedged between enthusiastic popular support and the objections of ultra orthodox Soviet leaders Skoug s economic and commercial responsibilities gave him considerable access to Czechoslovak officials even in the Novotny period and he was an eyewitness to the invasion and many other crucial events of the period including the great patriotic demonstration of March 1969 which the Soviet Union exploited to force Dubcek s resignation Despite overt Soviet pressure neither Prague nor Washington anticipated intervention The Johnson Administration courting Moscow for help on Vietnam displayed calculated indifference to the dispute and reacted tepidly to developments Left alone the Czechoslovak population met the invader with militant if passive resistance but the Dubcek leadership capitulated to Soviet demands and acquiesced in an occupation that gradually betrayed all of the gains achieved Subsequent reluctance by Washington to criticize Moscow helped the Soviet Union cut its diplomatic losses On the other hand the Czechoslovak crisis may have helped to persuade Gorbachev to allow Eastern Europe to resolve its own affairs in 1989      Soviet Intervention in Czechoslovakia, 1968 Jiri Valenta, 1991-11-01 In this new edition of his highly acclaimed work Jiri Valenta adds his assessment of Soviet military decisionmaking in the 1980s to his earlier analysis of decisionmaking and crisis management in the Soviet bureaucracy and Warsaw Pact Comparing the events of 1968 to the Kremlin s very different reaction to reforms now under way in Czechoslovakia and the rest of Eastern Europe Valenta shows that Soviet politics were never simple The USSR s foreign policy response to the Prague Spring he contends was the result of a complex political process conditioned by bureaucratic inertia coalition politics and East European pressures
