Raquiza, 2013-06-17 Why do some small developing countries industrialize and others don't What factors account for different economic performance among states that are vulnerable to external shocks crony capitalism and political instability This book argues that the answer lies in the structuring of state power specifically the way different sets of governing elites political leaders and economic technocrats are embedded in political organisations and state institutions and the way these elites relate to each other in the economic development policy process Conducting a comparative historical analysis of Thailand and the Philippines the book argues that the institutional settings of governing elites influence economic outcomes In Thailand political power traditionally connects to state institutions in ways that has limited the impact of political turnovers and global downturns conducive to long term industrial activities In contrast Philippine state power derives from family networks that merge social and political power suited to fast moving short term commercial interests In focusing on this political and institutional story the author analyses the current development dilemmas of countries weighed down by historical legacies of unstable regimes dependency and social conflict and how they are likely to develop in the future Bureaucracy and Political Development. Interrelations between Public Policies, Migration and Development in the Philippines Collectif,2017-05-30 Interrelations between Public Policies Migration and Development in the Philippines is the result of a project carried out by the Scalabrini Migration Center SMC and the OECD Development Centre in collaboration with the Commission on Filipinos Overseas CFO and with support from the European Union The project aimed to provide policy makers with evidence on the way migration influences specific sectors the labour market agriculture education and investment and financial services and in turn how sectoral policies affect migration The report addresses three dimensions of the migration cycle that have become an important part of the country s social and economic contexts emigration remittances and return The results of the empirical work confirm that even though migration contributes to the development of the Philippines the potential of migration is not fully exploited One explanation is that despite its advancement in understanding the link between migration and development which is reflected in the Philippine Development Plan not all policy makers in the Philippines take migration sufficiently into account in their respective policy areas The Philippines therefore needs to adopt a more coherent policy agenda and better integrate migration into their sectoral strategies to enhance the contribution of migration to development in the country Rents, Rent-Seeking and Economic Development Mushtaq Husain Khan,Jomo Kwame Sundaram,2000-09-07 The concepts of rents and rent seeking are central to any discussion of the processes of economic development Yet conventional models of rent seeking are unable to explain how it can drive decades of rapid growth in some countries and at other times be associated with spectacular economic crises This book argues that the rent seeking framework has to be radically extended by incorporating insights developed by political scientists institutional economists and political economists if it is to explain the anomalous role played by rent seeking in Asian countries It includes detailed analysis of Thailand Malaysia the Philippines the Indian sub continent Indonesia and South Korea This new critical and multidisciplinary approach has important policy implications for the debates over institutional reform in developing countries

It brings together leading international scholars in economics and political science and will be of great interest to readers in the social sciences and Asian studies in general
