

Dakota Rural Action to host public meeting on Referred Law 21

HURON — Dakota Rural Action will hold an informational meeting on Referred Law 21 at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 29, at Spotlight Studio 4C Events in Huron. Everyone is welcome to attend.

RL-21, prompted by the influx of proposed carbon dioxide pipelines and passed as Senate Bill 201 during the last legislative session, was referred to the ballot earlier this year. South Dakota citizens gathered over 30,000 signatures to refer this law to a vote of the people.

The evening's speakers are Ed Fischbach, a Spink County farmer and impacted landowner, and Chase Jensen, DREA's senior coordinator who has a long history of working on this issue.

They will review the history of the carbon dioxide pipeline, including how it led to RL-21 being on the ballot.

The meeting will be followed by a question and answer session. The meeting is being hosted by Stacy Robertson, a DREA Board member.

Lawmakers approve $10 million of outdoor recreation fee increases

PIERRE — Lawmakers unanimously approved nearly $10 million worth of annual fee increases Tuesday in Pierre for outdoor recreation such as hunting and park visitation, with a goal of bolstering conservation efforts and accomplishing deferred park projects.

The South Dakota Legislature's Rules Review Committee gave final approval to the Department of Game, Fish, and Parks' budget. The fee increases were previously approved by the GF&P Committee earlier this month in Huron.

Kevin Koblentz, department secretary, said the additional funds will help address hundreds of projects put on hold due to budget constraints.

The projects are part of the department's five-year development and maintenance plan, which Koblentz described as critical to ensuring the state's outdoor recreation areas remain accessible and well-maintained.

Department officials cited inflation as the driving force. The department's Division of Parks and Recreation, which oversees state parks, last adjusted fees in 2019.

The Wildlife Division, which manages conservation, hunting, fishing and wildlife management, did so in 2014.

The increases cover an array of licenses and fees, with non-South Dakota residents paying higher prices.

For example, nonresident state park entrance licenses are

Lawmakers, prison officials shut out public during discussion of weekslong lockdown

Tribal president requests meetings about sweat lodge teardowns

Lawmakers on an audit committee got a rundown Monday about a weekslong lockdown at the South Dakota State Penitentiary in Sioux Falls, but every word that hadn't already appeared in state prison press releases was spoken behind closed doors.

Department of Corrections Secretary Kelli Wasko spent about 10 minutes of the state's Corrections Operations and Audit Committee in Pierre reviewing through 12 pages of slides on the lockdown and alleged soon as Wasko finished her prepared remarks. Public boards, commissions and local governments are required to abide by open meetings laws when entering executive session, but the Legislature is exempt.

ing executive session, but the Legislature is exempt. Sen. Reynolds Nelson, D-Sioux Falls, began to ask a question before the body moved

After an hour and 20 minutes of executive session, the committee gavelled back in for less than two minutes and fielded two comments. "I'm confident to say that everything that I've heard, and that is being done, is being done for inmate safety, staff safety and community safety," said Rep. Drew Peterson, R-Denver.

Olsen said he seconded the sentiment. "It has been very informative, and I'm glad that we do have the personnel that we've got that are rectifying these problems," Olsen said. So from the bottom of my heart, thank you.

It's unclear how much of the executive session was devoted to discussions of the lockdown.

This summer, under questioning from the state's law enforcement, outbreaks of violence at Mike Wallace State Prison in Springfield, Wasko said she would be willing to give committed inmates "a nitty gritty" of security incidents, once the DCCA finished investigating, but only behind closed doors.

Legislators opt to subpoena officials

BY JOHN HULT

The refusal of a state department director to explain what's happened after a recent vehicle titling scandal sparked a rare subpoena request from a legislative committee on Monday.

Department of Revenue Secretary Michael Houdyshell appeared before the Legislature's Government Operations and Audit Committee in Pierre to discuss a new software system and other internal controls measures he said will prevent further vehicle titling troubles.

Department employees are criminally charged in a federal vehicle titling scheme, following an investigation into similar allegations against a deceased former employee.

But Houdyshell refused, even during an hourlong closed-door executive session, to offer details on the new internal controls. Houdyshell cited the criminal procedure rules that prohibit the possibility of future lawsuits, and said rules direct practicing attorneys to avoid making public statements about a case.

When the committee reconvened publicly, Sen. David Wheeler, R-Bismarck, told his fellow committee members that he disagreed with Houdyshell's interpretation of that rule.

Wheeler and Houdyshell both declined to answer. Wheeler argued that rules barring public statements about a case can't logically apply to statements offered behind closed doors.

He also said there is no case law preventing the deceased former employee, who can't be prosecuted, from taking actions could land the state in a lawsuit.

The senator said it's a pattern from the executive branch, and one that prevents lawmakers with oversight authority from doing their jobs.

"We need some sort of resolution to this, because this is the way we always get. It's occurred in the past when we've had controversies like this before this committee," Wheeler said. "Officials say they're pending litigation, there's a threat of litigation, therefore there's no response."

The committee voted 7-2 to support subpoenas for Houdyshell and Rosa Tager, director of the Revenue Department's Motor Vehicle Division. A subpoena is a legal order requiring someone to offer testimony or produce evidence.

The subpoenas would need approval from the Legislature's Judiciary Board.

Lawmakers tried and failed in 2013 to find a way that would have granted subpoena powers to the
