The Petrified Condom:

The Petrified Condom Elaine Eliah, 2003-04 Back in June 1949 I started taking notes on the jokes that people told me The great majority of these were cocktail party stories in those days generally referred to as dirty jokes I did this because I had learned from experience that when I heard a joke for the second time I remembered having heard it before and usually the punch line but and this was what galvanized me into action I found that I had not remembered the story well enough to call it to mind in sufficient detail to enable me to tell it to someone else This I find is a common problem among those who strive to be dedicated raconteurs or raconteuses So what I did with respect to recording new stories as I heard them was to immediately make notes on anything available consisting of essential clue words and the punch line My notes were composed with such particularity as to enable me in most cases to type the story in full when I was able to access my typewriter The next step was to tell the story a few times with a personal touch perhaps in such a manner as to eventually develop my reputation as one of the three or four best joke tellers east of the Rockies After typing the story up and adding it to my growing file I'd condense it to a clue line assign a number and add it to my list This master list was numbered serially as jokes were acquired being typed with a pre Xerox carbon copy The original was placed in my file and the carbon copy was on or near my person at all times when I was in a social situation I became known for carrying this list around with me I have always made it a practice not to identify a joke on my list by the punch line for reasons that must be obvious If I were to show my list to a friend so that he or she might pick out a joke by the number assigned to it it would ruin the telling of the joke if the punch line were to be prematurely exposed right there on my list More recently jokes have been flying wildly through cyberspace somewhat willy nilly no one seems to know much about their authorship and although I am presently a non possessor of a computer friends frequently download such material and copy the same to me Some of this is included in the second part of this book So much for the format of my notes and the list Now to the reason for publishing this collection that has been growing for lo these many years to wit many friends for a magnitudinous numerosity of years have encouraged me to do just that That's the simple answer and of course it's somewhat of an ego trip to see a publication with one's name on it The stories appearing in this publication include many that you have not heard before Some are stories that I have only heard once because they are intricately worded or require a dialect or accent of some sort I have found that few people will go to the trouble of memorizing a story that is intricately worded or will take the time to learn how to mimic or simply can't manage an accent or dialect I feel sure that the reader will concede that a story loses a lot in the telling or just falls flat if the story teller is unable to handle that aspect of the art The title of the book PICTURE IF YOU WILL was selected advisedly For years I have prefaced most stories I tell with that phrase because it sets the stage for the audience When you say it their minds respectively immediately go blank and become receptive They are ready to picture something you have their attention As the story progresses the listener tends to conjure up a picture of what is taking place in the telling often ascribing personalities to the characters in the story virtually viewing the prevailing circumstances and the activity inherent in the narrative on hi     The Round House Louise Erdrich,2013-02-07 Winner of the US National Book Award 2012 A powerful novel New York Times An extraordinary engrossing novel which should live long in the memory Independent on Sunday One Sunday in the spring of 1988 a woman living on a reservation in North Dakota is attacked The details of the crime are slow to surface because Geraldine Coutts is traumatized and reluctant to relive or reveal what happened either to the police or to her husband and thirteen year old son Joe As Geraldine slips into an abyss of solitude young Joe finds himself thrust prematurely into an adult world for which he is ill prepared While his father a tribal judge endeavors to wrest justice from a situation that defies his efforts Joe becomes frustrated with the official investigation and sets out with his trusted friends Cappy Zack and Angus to find some answers of his own The Round House is a page turning masterpiece at once a powerful coming of age story a mystery and a tender novel of family history and culture by one of the most revered novelists of our time     Join the Club
