Pontecorvo,Margherita Orsolini,Barbara Burge,Lauren B. Resnick,2014-02-04 For decades research on children s literacy has been dominated by questions of how children learn to read Especially among Anglophone scholars cognitive and psycholinguistic research on reading has been the only approach to studying written language education Echoing this debates on methods of teaching children to read have long dominated the educational scene This book presents an alternative view In recent years writing has emerged as a central aspect of becoming literate Research in cognitive psychology has shown that writing is a highly complex activity involving a degree of planning unknown in everyday conversational uses of language At the same time developmental studies have revealed that when young children are asked to write they show a surprisingly sophisticated understanding of the representational constraints of alphabetic writing systems They show this understanding long before they can read conventional writing on their own The rich structure of meanings involved in the word text provided the glue that brought together a group of scholars from several disciplines in an international workshop held in Rome Reflecting the state of the field at the time the majority of the workshop participants were scholars working in languages other than English especially the romance languages Their work mirrors a linguistic and psychological research tradition that Anglophone scholars knew little of until recently This volume provides English language readers with updated versions of the papers presented at the meeting The topics discussed at the workshop are represented in the chapters as follows the relationship between acquisition of language and familiarity with written texts the reciprocal permeability between spoken and written language the initial phases of text construction by children and the educational conditions that facilitate written language acquisition and writing practice     A Model for Identifying and Evaluating the Historic Significance of Post-World War II Housing ,2012 The report which contains numerous illustrations and photographic examples of postwar housing will also serve as an important reference document for cultural preservation professionals Vast numbers of postwar houses located in every American city town suburb and rural area are either currently more than 50 years old or will soon become 50 years old and are thus potentially eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places National Register Because of the passage of time the number of potentially eligible houses will increase dramatically in the next decade presenting a major challenge to DOT decision makers and preservation planners     Teaching Young Children Through Their Individual Learning Styles Rita Dunn,Janet Perrin,1994 Focuses on the educational needs of K 2 students and specific strategies for identifying their individual learning styles It details thorough instructions on how to develop a comprehensive reading program that successfully matches the appropriate reading approach to the individual student s needs It contains a thorough analysis of the 21 elements of learning style and the methods for recognizing them Details for redesigning classrooms and use of materials to accommodate the physiological emotional and sociological strengths of each student are explored It also contains newly developed resources and age appropriate samples and examples Kindergarten through second grade teachers who are interested in teaching students through their individual learning styles A Longwood Professional Book     Geography Around the Home Wallace R.
