Strategic And Tactical Decisions:

Strategic and Tactical Decisions K.J. Radford, 2012-12-06 Much of the work that has been done in the last fifty years in the area of decision analysis has been concerned with situations in which formal mathematical models of the decision process can be used. For example, deterministic models of operations research have been used as a means of treating decisions under conditions of certainty. Statistical decision theory has been applied to decision making under conditions of uncertainty and risk. Some attempts have been made to treat decisions under conditions of competition by methods derived from game theory. However, many of the decisions that we meet today in business and in our daily lives do not fall conveniently into the areas covered by these models. Many modern decisions are ill structured by nature. These decisions have been called wicked in comparison to the tame decisions that yield to formal analytical treatment. Complex decision situations are found in every aspect of our lives today. They are normally centred around an issue: opportunity, venture or threat that involves an individual or an organization on the one hand and other participants on the other hand. The issue in such a situation might involve, for example, the proposed move of the Head Office of a corporation from one political jurisdiction to another. It might be concerned with the opportunities and new ventures that would arise with the introduction of a new and different type of product or service into an organization.

Inside Hitler's High Command Geoffrey P. Megargee, 2000 Challenging previous accounts, Megargee shatters the myth that German generals would have prevailed in World War II if only Hitler had not meddled in their affairs. Instead, he observes that the military's strategic ideas were no better than Hitler's and often were worse. 20 photos

Mao's Generals Remember Korea Xiaobing Li, Allan Reed Millett, Bin Yu, 2001 Fifty years after the Korean conflict, what is a forgotten war for some Americans is an aching memory for China. With over a million casualties out of the three million soldiers sent into battle, that war looms as large for the People's Republic of China. PRC barely a year old when North Korea invaded the South as World War II does for most other countries. It was the first international war fought by the Chinese Communist regime to halt counterrevolution; it was also a war that the Chinese fully expected to win by virtue of not only superiority of numbers but also their soldiers' superior political quality. This book presents a mosaic of memoirs by key Chinese military commanders from that war, drawing not only on their personal papers but also on still classified archives and on Chinese language sources unavailable in English. It offers an uncensored behind-the-scenes story of the Communist campaign from the decision to intervene through the truce negotiations that disclose new information on such facets of the war as strategy and tactics, use of propaganda and mobilization of the Chinese population. It also reveals the generals' concerns about the possible use of nuclear force and the alleged use of biological and chemical weapons by the United States. The book contains a wealth of new materials on the Chinese intervention, including combat operations, logistics, political control, field command and communications. Among those whose recollections are recorded, then acting Chief of Staff Nie Rongzhen reveals how party leadership decided on intervention. Commander in Chief Peng Dehuai provides personal accounts of major battles and communications with Mao, and General Yang Dezhi shares secrets of Chinese military strategy and tactics, discussing how the army orchestrated each battle to contend with the better equipped UN forces. The volume also features an updated short history of the PRC's conduct of the war based on Chinese sources, plus rare photos from Chinese archives that put readers behind the lines from the Chinese side. Mao's Generals Remember Korea demonstrates that the PRC continues to draw military, diplomatic and strategic lessons from the war it fought fifty years ago with the world's most powerful military force. It offers valuable insight into the Chinese way of war and the military mind of Mao that will be a rich resource for Asian and military scholars.

Strategic Decision-Making. A Practical Example Based on "Tesla" Lukas

Wagner, 2018-11-26. Essay from the year 2017 in the subject Business Economics, Business Management, Corporate Governance, grade 1.0. Tongji University, language: English, abstract.

Decision making is a fundamental skill for any successful executive. But decisions at strategic level are hard to make. They require large amounts of resources and commitments which may be irreversible. They involve long term consequences that are hard to predict. And they require considering multiple often conflicting strategic objectives which are difficult to balance, particularly in the presence of risk and uncertainty. Research and thinking about modern business strategy emerged as a field of study and practice in the 1960s. Prior to that time the words strategy and competition rarely appeared in the most prominent management literature. When influential academics in the USA started to think fundamentally about strategic decision making in the 1980s and 90s, they made the assumption that everything works in a competitive, working free market and developed thereof generic strategy tools that are supposed to work everywhere. However, Elmes, the guest speaker, argues that they are not well founded since strategies need to be developed in the respective context of an industry or market. This position will be explained in more detail during this essay. Especially the determinant of market efficiency, meaning how competitive a market is, strongly influences the development of strategic decisions There are many industries where government involvement or asymmetric competition need to be considered to make strategic decisions whereby generic strategy tools tend to be ineffective Therefore the key questions for this essay will be firstly what are the traditional concepts of strategy and how have they involved secondly what actually makes a strategy successful and lastly how does it apply in practice On war: tr. by J.J.
