The Media and Me Ben Boyington,Allison T. Butler,Nolan Higdon,Mickey Huff,Andy Lee Roth,2022-12-27 From foundations in critical thinking skills to practical tools and real life perspectives this book empowers young adult readers to be independent media users The Media and Me is a joint production of The Censored Press and Triangle Square Books for Young Readers During the recent presidential election media literacy became a buzzword that signified the threat media manipulation posed to democratic processes Meanwhile statistical research has shown that 8 to 18 year olds pack more than eleven hours with some form of media into each day by media multitasking Young people are not only eager and interested to learn about and discuss the realities of media ownership production and distribution they also deserve to understand differential power structures in how media influences our culture The Media and Me provides readers with the tools and perspectives to be empowered and autonomous media users The book explores critical inquiry skills to help young people form a multidimensional comprehension of what they read and watch opportunities to see others like them making change and insight into their own identity projects By covering topics like storytelling building arguments and recognizing fallacies surveillance and digital gatekeeping advertising and consumerism and global social problems through a critical media literacy lens this book will help students evolve from passive consumers of media to engaged critics and creators

The Role of the Media in Shaping Physical Activity and Pro-Health Interests in Students Jedrzej Skrzypczak,Tadeusz Wallas,2022-06-20 The main objective of the scientific project was to examine the impact of media messages on interests preferences and primarily the attitudes of academic youth related to sports and physical activity According to the researchers involved the issue seems noteworthy because the media has been in the process of radical transformation One of the effects is the change in the forms and platforms of media consumption especially among young persons belonging to the Z generation The research team faced many probing questions First of all how are the interests preferences and attitudes of university youth to academic sports and a healthy lifestyle shaped To what extent does the current media offer related to the mentioned topics remain compatible with them at the level of national and academic media What are the strengths and weaknesses of the Polish system of media messages regarding academic sports and a lifestyle conducive to health Secondly attempts were made to answer the question to what extent contemporary university audio visual media can support the concept of influencing the student community in popularising physical activity Thirdly To what extent can contemporary social media available on the internet support the notion of influencing the student environment by promoting physical activity Finally How can the information selection and thematic scope be shaped to influence the academic community in furthering sports effectively We hope that this work will contribute to the proper use of all available media communication channels to improve the physical condition and health of the Z or C i e Connected generation They do not know life and the world without the network My First Book about Wisconsin Carole Marsh,1994 Religion in the Media Age Stewart M. Grube,2019-05-14 A revealing look at how today s bureaucrats are finding their public voice in the era of 24 hour media Once relegated to the anonymous back rooms of democratic debate our bureaucratic leaders are increasingly having to govern under the scrutiny of a 24 hour news cycle hyperpartisan political oversight and a restless populace that is increasingly distrustful of the people who govern them

Megaphone Bureaucracy reveals how today's civil servants are finding a voice of their own as they join elected politicians on the public stage and jockey for advantage in the persuasion game of modern governance. In this timely and incisive book Dennis Grube draws on in-depth interviews and compelling case studies from the United States, the United Kingdom, Australia, Canada and New Zealand to describe how senior bureaucrats are finding themselves drawn into political debates they could once avoid. Faced with a political climate where polarization and media spin are at an all-time high, these modern mandarins negotiate blame games and manage contradictory expectations in the glare of an unforgiving spotlight. Grube argues that in this fiercely divided public square a new style of bureaucratic leadership is emerging, one that marries the robust independence of Washington agency heads with the prudent political neutrality of Westminster civil servants. These Westminster leaders do not avoid the public gaze nor do they overtly court political controversy. Rather they use their increasingly public pulpits to exert their own brand of persuasive power. Megaphone Bureaucracy shows how today's senior bureaucrats are making their voices heard by embracing a new style of communication that brings with it great danger but also great opportunity.
