Selective Tuning model of vision and attention Although William James declared in 1890 Everyone knows what attention is today there are many different and sometimes opposing views on the subject This fragmented theoretical landscape may be because most of the theories and models of attention offer explanations in natural language or in a pictorial manner rather than providing a quantitative and unambiguous statement of the theory They focus on the manifestations of attention instead of its rationale In this book John Tsotsos develops a formal model of visual attention with the goal of providing a theoretical explanation for why humans and animals must have the capacity to attend He takes a unique approach to the theory using the full breadth of the language of computation rather than simply the language of mathematics as the formal means of description The result the Selective Tuning model of vision and attention explains attentive behavior in humans and provides a foundation for building computer systems that see with human like characteristics The overarching conclusion is that human vision is based on a general purpose processor that can be dynamically tuned to the task and the scene viewed on a moment by moment basis Tsotsos offers a comprehensive up to date overview of attention theories and models and a full description of the Selective Tuning model confining the formal elements to two chapters and two appendixes The text is accompanied by more than 100 illustrations in black and white and color additional color illustrations and movies are available on the book s Web site The Visual Dictionary of the Earth Dorling Kindersley Publishing Staff,1993
