Strategy and force planning in a time of austerity Michael J. Meese,2014

Force Planning in an Era of Uncertainty John F. Troxell,1997 Colonel John F Troxell first asserts that there is a false dichotomy being drawn between capabilities based and threat based force planning He argues that post Cold War force planning must be founded on a logical integration of threat and capabilities based planning methodologies He then addresses the issue of the two Major Regional Contingency MRC force sizing paradigm After reviewing all the arguments made against that paradigm Colonel Troxell concludes that in a world characterized by uncertainty and regional instability in which the United States has global security interests and a unique leadership role the two MRC framework constitutes a logical scheme for organizing U S defense planning efforts That framework is also flexible enough to accommodate adjustments to the U S defense establishment both today and for the immediate future New approaches to planning scenarios and the operational concept for employing forces offer the potential for such adjustments concerning the ways of the strategic paradigm while force thinning and modernization are two important categories for adjusting the affordability of the strategic means At some point changes in the international security environment will demand significantly different approaches to shaping U S forces But given the QDR s ringing endorsement of the two MRC construct that change will be a 21st rather than a 20th century undertaking

Air Force Journal of Logistics, 1980 Congressional Record United States. Congress, 1972. The Congressional Record is the official record of the proceedings and debates of the United States Congress. It is published daily when Congress is in session. The Congressional Record began publication in 1873. Debates for sessions prior to 1873 are recorded in The Debates and Proceedings in the Congress of the United States 1789-1824, the Register of Debates in Congress 1824-1837, and the Congressional Globe 1833-1873. Managing Risk in USAF Force Planning Frank A. Camm, 2009. Presents a risk management process that would help senior Air Force leaders to 1) focus planning on the most salient threats, 2) gain greater clarity on the risks associated with alternative courses of action across multiple futures, 3) maintain a sense of the persistent uncertainties associated with any policy choice, and 4) effectively communicate their judgments about risk to key audiences
