Climate change, migration and rural adaptation in the Near East and North Africa region Szaboova, L., 2023-04-18 While there are instances where individuals or households are forcibly displaced or leave because they feel a decent life is no longer possible migration is more than just a response to an unfolding crisis Under certain conditions migration can be a proactive livelihood diversification strategy that contributes to rural households capacity to adapt to changing conditions

Patterns Of Change In Developing Rural Regions Dafna Schwartz, Raphael Bar-El, Avrom Bendavid-Val, Gerald Karaska, 2019-07-11 Development specialists often overlook the fact that the towns of a rural region play as essential a role in the region's economy as does agriculture and they design and implement broad strategies without due recognition of the unique and dynamic character of each individual region Proper analysis requires consideration of the changing nature of rural regions and the principal agents of change The contributors to this volume argue that development strategists should focus on processes rather than on products by taking the nonfarm aspects as well as the farm aspects of rural development into account and by recognizing that land labor water and technology do not alone lead to balanced regional and agricultural development The analytical approaches presented in this book incorporate wide ranging variables from the urban space of rural regions markets towns service industries and organizations that have major impacts on the rural regional economy These methodologies aim at improving rural regional development processes

Understanding Rural Development In Indian Scenario Dr. Birender Prasad, Dr. Abhishek Chauhan, Dr. Rajkumar Mahto, 2025-03-19 India with its vast rural landscape has long emphasized rural development as a crucial pillar of its socio economic progress This book provides a comprehensive understanding of rural development going beyond agriculture to explore the broader aspects of improving living conditions opportunities and empowerment in rural areas It delves into the definitions of rural and development from both national and global perspectives examining key theories indicators and objectives The book traces the evolution of rural development in India from pre independence to the present analyzing major policy shifts their impact and the effectiveness of various initiatives A special focus is given to the role of international organizations in shaping global rural development trends Additionally it evaluates different approaches government programmes and the importance of community participation in fostering sustainable rural growth This book is an essential read for policymakers researchers and anyone interested in understanding India s rural transformation Agricultural Adaptation to Climate Change Christopher R.

Bryant, Mamadou A. Sarr, Kénel Délusca, 2016-08-26 This book deals with one of the major challenges facing human society and its governments climate change and variability The principal objective of the book is to explore how agricultural production through the actions primarily of farmers including peasant farmers adapt to these changing circumstances what the limitations of adaptation are how the process of adaptation varies between different territories e g developed countries versus developing countries and what are or can be the most effective roles for actors other than the farmers including different levels of government and non governmental organizations NGOs such as professional associations of farmers and community organizations The principal argument is threefold 1 while there are significant differences between territories and countries in terms of the capacity of farmers and the other actors to engage in capacity building to be able to adapt effectively to climate change and variability 2 the critical roles are those played out by the farmers themselves but that 3 other actors can play an important role in accompanying farmers in their adaptation process providing relevant and strategic information counseling them and facilitating networking and meetings when appropriate This effectively means that without engaging in the local adaptation processes governments can really only play effective roles by working with other actors at the local and regional levels When it occurs it can be very effective but when it does not farmers are left to their own devices and even then many are able to use their own creativity and local knowledge to survive and continue to develop Essentially therefore the secondary argument that is followed throughout the book is that adaptation is essentially a social process that requires an understanding of social processes and dynamics in each farming community and territory It involves an understanding for instance of information diffusion processes in the different farming communities and territories which provides a set of tools to promote and facilitate the adoption process in the context of adaptation to climate change and variability A Strategy for Rural Change Charles Price Loomis, Joseph Allan Beegle, 1975 Rural sociology textbook on policies for rural area social change examines various types of social system based on such factors as locality family and kinship social stratification religion government etc covers farming systems educational systems farmers associations health librarys and mass media etc and discusses some behavioural change concepts References and statistical tables Rural National AIDS Commission,2003 Rural Regeneration in the UK Simon Pemberton,2019-04-26 Rural Regeneration in the UK provides an accessible yet critical overview of rural regeneration policy and governance in the UK It charts the key patterns and processes of rural change since 1945 and the emergence and evolution of rural regeneration policy and governance in shaping rural spaces A key objective of the book is to highlight how and to what extent rural regeneration policy and governance are responsive to an increasingly differentiated and uneven rural economy and society Part One considers the context for rural regeneration including theoretical frameworks of relevance and the ways in which rural regeneration policy and governance have been framed In particular it includes a consideration of how the rural has been made thinkable and the extent to which this has moved beyond traditional concerns with agricultural development Part Two highlights the key dimensions and spaces of rural regeneration This includes responses to rural change from within the rural including community led approaches the use of culture and the extent to which approaches may be converging or diverging within a devolved UK Rural Regeneration in the UK provides a comprehensive and integrated analysis of responses to rural change that will appeal to a broad audience of students scholars and practitioners both in the UK and abroad Impact of Globalization on Population Change and Poverty in Rural Areas United Nations. Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific,1999 Contains three studies presented at the Policy Seminar on the Impact of Globalization on Population Change and Poverty in Rural Areas organized at Bangkok from 31 March to 2 April 1999 Based upon these papers other reports and country experience the participants in the Policy Seminar adopted a set of recommendations that are attached as an annex to this report Recent global economic patterns have had an unprecedented impact on the rural areas of national economies especially in terms of creating opportunities for off farm employment This report examines these issues and current trends in the region as a whole with focus given to Nepal and Thailand in two of the chapters Enhancing Food Security and Trade Resilience in Sustainable Agricultural Systems Wenjin Long,,Catherine Keske,Fuyou Guo,2025-10-23 Food security is a critical global challenge influenced by complex interactions between agriculture trade and market dynamics As countries navigate the impacts of climate change and economic fluctuations sustainable agricultural practices become essential for ensuring a stable food supply International trade agreements such as the China Pakistan Free Trade Agreement and the pathways established by the Belt and Road Initiative significantly shape domestic agricultural economies Understanding how these agreements affect food access sovereignty and production sustainability is crucial for developing resilient food systems Despite the recognised importance of these interconnections there is limited research that comprehensively examines the interplay between trade policies and sustainable agricultural practices in supporting food security Many existing studies focus on individual aspects neglecting the integrated nature of these systems This Research Topic aims to fill this gap by exploring how trade dynamics local agricultural strategies and policy frameworks can enhance food security and resilience By synthesising diverse case studies and analyses we aim to identify best practices and effective pathways to strengthen both trade and local agricultural sustainability in various contexts Rural Development Strategies in Nigeria Nigerian Rural Sociological Association. Annual Conference,1992 Communication strategy for rural change K. N. Singh,1973 The Changing Face of Rural Space Julian A. Lampietti,Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2009 This report brings together lessons from previous studies supplemented by new analysis It frames the challenges facing the rural and agri food sector in the Western Balkans to illustrate the directions for policies now and in the future Part one looks at the characteristics of the rural and agri food sector today its potential and its obstacles Part two looks at the future of the agri food sector and rural space Value chains will change with more competitive imports with larger retailers influencing value chains and with farmers and processors needing to respond to these trends by producing goods that meet quality and safety standards consistently and reliably These changes will drive the modernization of agriculture leading to an agri food sector with fewer and more productive farms Beyond the agri food sector effective rural development programs will be needed to ensure that agriculture s modernization is balanced and equitable Local authorities and rural communities will have to be involved in developing and implementing territorial strategies for leveraging the non farm potential of rural areas Food safety standards will become more important as countries strive to meet private and public standards and climate change will introduce uncertainty and compel farmers to adapt Part three provides a roadmap to help governments create a strong and healthy rural and agri food sector able to respond to these challenges It looks first at the strategy that should drive public spending in agriculture and the composition of that spending It then looks at how governments can best provide public services to agriculture in extension advisory services agricultural information services and agricultural education and research The report s aim is to enable governments and donors to have a common vision of the goals and directions of their policies and programs It identifies future threats and challenges to the sector and provides a framework of outcomes and objectives to inform future government policies and donor assistance to the sector The Changing American Countryside Emery N. Castle,1995 The literature on rural America to the extent that it exists has largely been written by urban based scholars perpetuating out of date notions and stereotypes or by those who see little difference between rural and agricultural concerns As a result the real rural America remains much misunderstood neglected or ignored by scholars and policymakers alike In response Emery Castle offers The Changing American Countryside a volume that will forever change how we look at this important subject Castle brings together the writings of eminent scholars from several disciplines and varying backgrounds to take a fresh and comprehensive look at the forgotten hinterlands These authors examine the role of non metropolitan people and places in the economic life of our nation and cover such diverse issues as poverty industry the environment education family social problems ethnicity race religion gender government public policy and regional diversity The authors are especially effective in demonstrating why rural America is so much more than just agriculture It is in fact highly diverse complex and interdependent with urban America and the international market place Most major rural problems they contend simply cannot be effectively addressed in isolation from their urban and international connections To do so is misguided and even hazardous when one fourth of our population and ninety seven per cent of our land area is rural Together these writings not only provide a new and more realistic view of rural life and public policy but also suggest how the field of rural studies can greatly enrich our understanding of national life Changing Times ,2004 New Governance for Rural America Beryl A. Radin,1996 An excellent addition to our understanding of rural development and intergovernmental management Its solid scholarship enlightened conceptual framework and clear writing style make it a welcome addition to the field of public policy and administration B J Reed University of Nebraska at Omaha Studies in Multilevel Planning Amitava Mukherjee,1990
