well as cars even hire purchases i.e. arrangements for payment by installments were usual. Also young adults or teenagers who were working besides school mostly in part time jobs earned their own money in those days. Benefitted by that they were able to purchase goods on their own independent from their parents and other adults. In contrast to previous youth generations especially pre war generations young people could enjoy the omnipresent music and fashion which was spread by mass media such as magazines or television. With the new freedom and possibilities the younger generation had the chance to develop their own identity instead of living like the other adults. But they were not just using this chance they even rebelled and broke away from their parents which resulted in the emergence of youth culture as well as popular culture.
