McAlexander, 2008 Basic Writing in America published three decades after Mina Shaughnessy's Errors and Expectations presents the kind of educational stories envisioned by The City University of New York's Patricia Laurence Each of these stories has its own unique setting conflict and outcome Yet together they give a powerful and dramatic portrait of basic writing in four year colleges and universities across the country In the Introduction the editors argue that basic writing programs involved a new concept of writing remediation Receiving impetus from the American civil rights movement these programs defined postsecondary education not in terms of an investment for society but as an individual right Indeed a major purpose of basic writing was to facilitate the integration of underrepresented groups into America's colleges and universities The chapters describe the often hostile responses to basic writing and its students the low status of basic writing programs within English departments and universities clashes within the basic writing field itself pedagogical developments in composition as applied to basic writing and the professionalization of basic writing faculty They also show as years pass the raising of college admission standards the elimination or downsizing of basic writing programs and the channeling of less qualified students to two year colleges But in a number of institutions there are also innovations and successes including the emergence of a new type of basic writing program one that is more integrated with the college or university and that offers learning support to a wider range of students Journal of Developmental Education, 2004 The Bedford Bibliography for Teachers of Writing Robert M. Gorrell, Patricia Bizzell, Bruce Herzberg, 1984 The Writing Teacher's Sourcebook Gary Tate, 1994

Computers and the Teaching of Writing in American Higher Education, 1979-1994 Gail E. Hawisher,1996 This book is a history composed of histories Its particular focus is the way in which computers entered and changed the field of composition studies a field that defines itself both as a research community and as a community of teachers This may have a somewhat sinister suggestion that technology alone has agency but this history made of histories is not principally about computers It is about people the teachers and scholars who have adapted the computer to their personal and professional purposes From the authors perspectives change in technology drives changes in the ways we live and work and we agents to a degree in control of our own lives use technology to achieve our human purposes REVIEW This book reminds those of us now using computers to teach writing where we have been and it brings those who are just entering the field up to date More important it will inform administrators curriculum specialists and others responsible for implementing the future uses of technology in writing instruction Computers and Composition Negotiating Literacy Michele R.
