Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 12 sedentary women, 30 to 45 years of age, who were randomly selected from a telephone directory. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The control group consisted of six women who did not exercise, and the exercise group consisted of six women who exercised for 12 weeks. The exercise program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The sessions were performed on a stationary bike at a heart rate of 150 to 160 beats per minute. The control group was instructed to maintain their current level of activity. The subjects were monitored for 12 weeks. The HR and EE were measured at the beginning and end of the study. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant increase in HR and EE compared to the control group. The HR increased from 140 to 150 beats per minute, and the EE increased from 1,800 to 2,200 kcal per day. The control group showed no significant change in HR or EE. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the HR and EE of sedentary, middle-aged women.
