Dynamic Process Methodology in the Social and Developmental Sciences Jaan Valsiner, Peter C. M. Molenaar, Maria C.D.P. Lyra, Nandita Chaudhary, 2009-07-09 All psychological processes like biological and social ones are dynamic Phenomena of nature society and the human psyche are context bound constantly changing and variable This feature of reality is often not recognized in the social sciences where we operate with averaged data and with homogeneous stereotypes and consider our consistency to be the cornerstone of rational being Yet we are all inconsistent in our actions within a day or from one day to the next and much of such inconsistency is of positive value for our survival and development Our inconsistent behaviors and thoughts may appear chaotic yet there is generality within this highly variable dynamic The task of scientific methodologies qualitative and quantitative is to find out what that generality is It is the aim of this handbook to bring into one framework various directions of construction of methodology of the dynamic processes that exist in the social sciences at the beginning of the 21st century This handbook is set up to bring together pertinent methodological scholarship from all over the world and equally from the quantitative and qualitative orientations to methodology In addition to consolidating the pertinent knowledge base for the purposes of its further growth this book serves the major educational role of bringing practitioners students researchers and professionals interested in applications the state of the art know how about how to think about extracting evidence from single cases and about the formal mathematical statistical tools to use for these purposes

this important subject Castle brings together the writings of eminent scholars from several disciplines and varying backgrounds to take a fresh and comprehensive look at the forgotten hinterlands These authors examine the role of non metropolitan people and places in the economic life of our nation and cover such diverse issues as poverty industry the environment education family social problems ethnicity race religion gender government public policy and regional diversity The authors are especially effective in demonstrating why rural America is so much more than just agriculture It is in fact highly diverse complex and interdependent with urban America and the international market place Most major rural problems they contend simply cannot be effectively addressed in isolation from their urban and international connections To do so is misguided and even hazardous when one fourth of our population and ninety seven per cent of our land area is rural Together these writings not only provide a new and more realistic view of rural life and public policy but also suggest how the field of rural studies can greatly enrich our understanding of national life
