The Development Process:

The Development Process Akin Mabogunje, 2015-12-14 Written from the perspective of developing countries this book discusses the development process from a spatial perspective focussing particularly on the evolution of the intra national space economy With emphasis on African nations this book offers a distinctive interpretation of the current situation and policy prescriptions differing significantly from previous literature in the area Urbanisation, Housing and the Development Process David Drakakis-Smith, 2010-11-26 Initially published in 1981 this book examines the problems of housing provision for the urban poor in developing countries within the context of the development process as a whole The investigation concentrates on the political economy of housing investment and illustrates how programmes and policies are often determined by broader development issues Commencing with a discussion of urban growth in the Third World the author then provides a general discussion on housing provision within contemporary development planning in the Third World Four main types of accommodation e government construction private sector squatter housing and slum e are examined in terms of their contemporary and potential roles in meeting low cost housing needs Drawing on evidence from a number of Asian countries the study argues that the real needs of the urban poor are not being met and that other political and economic objectives set by the established elites of society predominate The Private Economic Development Process Allan Borut, United States Conference of Mayors, 1979
