Bibliography Scriptinformatics Dr. habil. Gábor Hosszú,2021-02-05 Scripts writing systems usually belong to specific languages and have temporal spatial and cultural characteristics The evolution of scripts has been the subject of research for a long time This is probably because the long term development of human thinking is reflected in the surviving script relics many of which are still undeciphered today The book presents the study of the script evolution with the mathematical tools of systematics phylogenetics and bioinformatics In the research described the script is the evolutionary taxonomic unit taxon which is analogous to the concept of biological species Among the methods of phylogenetics phenetics classifies the investigated taxa on the basis of their morphological similarity and does not primarily examine genealogical relationships Due to the scarcity of morphological diversity of scripts features random coincidences of evolution independent features are much more common in scripts than in biological species thus phenetic modelling based solely on morphological features can lead to erroneous results For this reason phenetic modeling has been extended with evolutionary considerations thereby allowing the modelling uncertainties observed in the script evolution to be addressed due to the large number of random coincidences homoplasies characterizing each script The book describes an extended phenetic method developed to investigate the script evolution This data driven approach helps to reduce the impact of the uncertainties inherent in the phenetic model due to the large number of homoplasies that occur during the evolution of scripts The elaborated phenetic and evolutionary analyses were applied to the Rovash scripts used on the Eurasian Steppe Grassland including the Turkic Rovash Turkic Runic runiform and the Székely Hungarian Rovash The evaluation of the extended phenetic model of the scripts the various phenograms the script spectra and the group spectra helped to reconstruct the main ancestors and evolutionary stages of the investigated scripts

Claiming a Promised Inheritance Alexandra Braun, 2022 This book examines those cases where a person is promised a future inheritance and having acted on it later discovers that the promise is unfulfilled It structures its analysis and argument around the stories of disappointed promisees and their unfulfilled expectations of a future inheritance and how they might seek redress It maps and compares the various and often very diverse range of legal responses that a promisee can avail herself of across different legal areas of the law ranging from contract law to property law employment law unjust and unjustified enrichment law and succession law and in both common and civil law traditions It asks how these responses protect the interests of promisees and whether they are sensitive to the context in which such promises are expressed In doing so the focus rests on the level of protection the various forms of redress grant their scope and the challenges promisees face when bringing a claim but also on the values and interests that are at stake when granting relief This book argues that due to the social and legal context within which promises of a future inheritance are normally made promisees are usually in a vulnerable position that can easily be exploited It further argues that the law is usually more acutely attuned to the risks that the promisor incurs and that greater attention should be paid to the challenges promisees face This book thus complements the traditional viewpoint by bringing into focus the too often ignored perspective of promisees
