Supervising The Doctorate:

EBOOK: Supervising the Doctorate Sara Delamont, Paul Atkinson, Odette Parry, 2004-06-16 This publication represents a thorough updating of an earlier book that was in its own right very useful. The second edition is a significant improvement on its predecessor and I cannot recommend it highly enough for novice or experienced doctoral supervisors. Journal of Adult and Continuing Education How can I get my students to produce good theses on time? My last student failed. What could I have done to prevent it? I am supposed to train the new supervisors in my faculty where can I get some good ideas? This new edition of Supervising the Doctorate still provides everything you ever wanted to know about the doctoral supervision but were afraid to ask. It includes New material on supervising professional doctoral theses. A new chapter on the changing policy context in higher education. Latest research findings. Experiential material from staff development sessions throughout the United Kingdom and New Zealand. Now that supervisor training is compulsory this practical no nonsense handbook is essential reading for both the novice and the experienced higher degree supervisor. For novices there is a developmental sequence of advice guiding them through all stages of supervision from the first meeting to the viva and beyond. For experienced supervisors there are fresh ideas on how to improve practice and solve problems. Grounded in research this book is invaluable to academics in all disciplines. At a time when there is increasing pressure to ensure quality provision to improve the doctoral completion rate and to turn out employable graduates the need for a practical guide is obvious. An essential item for every academic's bookshelf.

Supervising PhD Students Hugh Kearns, John Finn, 2017-10 This book is a guide to the practical activities, strategies and tools used by effective PhD supervisors. It looks at the main processes that relate to PhD supervision: the personal motivations of supervisors; recruitment; clarifying expectations; how to run productive meetings; providing effective feedback; academic writing; the interpersonal challenges that arise during the PhD; the PhD examination and professional development. We address these key supervisory practices by offering a range of practical advice and activities that can inform and guide supervisors. Throughout the book we highlight examples of good and bad practice that are inspired by real life examples. The book provides a range of templates and supports that supervisors can provide to their PhD students. This is one of our strongest motivations for writing

Enhancing the Doctoral Experience Steve Hutchinson, Helen Lawrence, 2017-03-02 One of the major intangible benefits associated with the postgraduate research experience is precisely that the experience And more specifically for an increasing number of international research students the British doctoral experience This experience is often largely defined and shaped by their relationship with and support from their supervisor Enhancing the Doctoral Experience brings together the authors experience and research frameworks and models as well as pragmatic feedback and understanding This synthesis of scholarly theory and pragmatic sampling has produced a book that provides a scaffold for students and supervisors to have conversations about their expectations to discuss what supervision is to articulate clearly what both parties need in order for a successful relationship to occur and to build a mutually beneficial endeavour In many cases these conversations can be complicated by cultural and linguistic differences so the text explicitly addresses these and other sources of misunderstanding Against a challenging background of growing numbers of students but also increasing pressures on time and costs Enhancing the Doctoral Experience offers an approach to improve the effectiveness of the doctoral student and increase the professionalization of research supervision It does so by providing both with an awareness of and a toolkit to approach student diversity

Supervisors Stan Taylor, Margaret Kiley, Karri A. Holley, 2020-12-17 With a wide range of international contributors this book surveys how the main doctoral awarding countries across the globe define criteria for the eligibility of supervisors. It compares and contrasts their approaches, comments upon their robustness and identifies examples of good practice. The quality of supervision has been shown to be a major factor in determining the learning experiences of doctoral scholars and their chances of success. However, relatively little is known about the ways in which doctoral supervisors are selected for their roles, supported to perform them and recognised for their efforts. This book looks at these matters in 21 major doctoral awarding countries collectively responsible for over 90% of global doctoral awards. Each case study constitutes a stand-alone contribution to the literature on doctoral supervision in that country and provides a brief introduction to the national context of doctoral education, outlines policies and procedures for the selection of supervisors, discusses the support and development available to supervisors and gives examples of good practice, comments on if and how supervision is recognised and rewarded. Written by a distinguished international team of authors, The Making of Doctoral Supervisors will be of interest to all those engaged in doctoral education, including policy makers, program leaders, supervisors, administrators and scholars in the field.
