all counsellors and for most psychotherapists yet until recently it has been assumed that any experienced counsellor or therapist could become a supervisor without any special expertise But the experience of those in supervision is sometimes of inadequate or even unhelpful work by their supervisors At the same time supervision is receiving considerable attention as a discipline in its own right with an expanding literature on the dynamics of the supervisory couple or the supervisory triad since the client is a central if absent presence more attention is also being paid to the technical skills required of the supervisor This book addresses those issues both from the perspective of the supervisee and the supervisor suggesting what supervisees might expect from good supervision as well as offering guidance to supervisors on how best to use to the full the opportunities offered by a therapeutic situation which has some similarities but also some radical differences from counselling and therapy itself Constructive Clinical Supervision in Counseling and Psychotherapy Douglas A. provides the reader with a sophisticated understanding of theory whilst exploring the principles that underpin good practice. The text gives useful insights into the conflicts and possibilities offered by supervision to both supervisor and supervisee. Drawing on case studies taken directly from the author's own experience, the individual chapters consider issues in a variety of settings from group supervision and supervising in institutions to working with difference and supervising those with clients in crisis. What do we really know about the supervision of therapy and counselling? What kind of things make it easier and what gets in the way? How do therapy and supervision resemble one another and in what ways do they differ? In an effort to address these pressing questions, this volume brings together authors from a variety of different perspectives and orientations to comment on supervision. It is recommended reading for all experienced therapists and counsellors and will be particularly useful to those undertaking advanced courses on supervision.

It acts as a how-to guide offering advice on all aspects of the supervisory relationship from finding the right supervisor through to dealing with interpersonal tensions and ethical dilemmas. It is packed with tips and advice grounded in the authors' years of real-life practice and vividly illustrated by brief examples throughout. Reflective questions at regular intervals will help readers to apply what they read to their personal experience.
