If Not 4 U and Some Shoes Laurie Nenson,2015-07-28 Teenager Francie Lanoo is smitten with two things in life beautiful shoes and heartthrob Berkeley Mills who she knows is definitely out of her league After months of ogling him she finally gains the confidence to befriend him And when he out of the blue asks what her ideal shoe would look like she embarks on a quest to find it just for him Low and behold the stars align and Francie unexpectedly begins dating Berkeley When he encourages her to accept an opportunity to study for a year in Italy she ignores her gut instinct and agrees to it reluctantly saying goodbye to both the love of her life and the only world shes ever known After growing accustomed to her newfound life Francie decides to attend college in New York where she continues to refine the characteristics of her ongoing shoe hunt And though Berkeley has chosen to attend college on the opposite side of the continent Francie remains forever hopeful that their relationship will one day resume But when sudden tragedy strikes Francie plunges into a tailspin and abandons all pursuits of happiness As time passes she begins to realize that her chase for the perfect shoe was about something far more meaningful than footwear Now only one question remains is it too late to claim the coveted prize If Not 4 U and Some Shoes is a quirky coming of age tale expressed through the eyes of a shoe fanatic as she attempts to find herself and true love

The Way You Make Me Feel Nina Sharma,2024-05-07 Remarkable The Way You Make Me Feel affirms that Black and Brown existence in America comes with no guarantee of collective solidarity no innate promise of racial equality The path to justice is uncertain Sharma reminds us and we must each work hard and be bold enough to sacrifice our own comfort to actualize it Washington Post A hilarious and moving memoir in essays about love and allyship told through one Asian and Black interracial relationship When Nina Sharma meets Quincy while hitching a ride to a friend s Fourth of July barbecue she spots a favorite book Maxine Hong Kingston s The Woman Warrior in the back seat of his cramped car and senses a sadness from him that's all too familiar to her. She is immediately intrigued who is this man. In The Way You Make Me Feel Sharma chronicles her and Quincy's love story and in doing so examines how their Black and Asian relationship becomes the lens through which she moves through and understands the world. In a series of sensual and sparkling essays Sharma reckons with caste, race, colorism and mental health moving from her seemingly idyllic suburban childhood through her and Quincy's early sweeping romance in the so-called post-racial Obama years and onward to their marriage. Growing up she hears her parents talk about the racism they experienced at the hands of white America and as an adult she confronts the complexities of American racism and the paradox of her family's disappointment when she starts dating a Black man. While watching The Walking Dead Sharma dives into the eerie parallels between the brutal death of Steven Yeun's character and the murder of Vincent Chin. She examines the trailblazing Mira Nair film Mississippi Masala revolutionary in its time for depicting a love story between an Indian woman and a Black man on screen and considers why interracial relationships are so often assumed to include white people. And as she and Quincy decide whether to start a family they imagine a universe in which Vice President Kamala Harris could possibly be their time-traveling daughter. Written with a keen critical eye and seamlessly weaving in history, pop culture and politics The Way You Make Me Feel reaffirms the idea that allyship is an act of true love.

Boot and Shoe Recorder, 1897      My Year of Really Bad Dates Rachel Lithgow, 2025-11-11 For anyone who's ever gone on a terrible date, a vulnerable memoir that explores dating in midlife after divorce with bad dates from terrible one-night stands to promising matches who ultimately disappoint anchoring the theme of every chapter. After two life-shaking events losing her father and divorcing the man she's spent half her life with who happens to be an actor from a famous family, Rachel Lithgow leaves a thirty-year career to write full-time and pursue a relationship with a calming, delightful man she recently met online. She thinks she has it all figured out until he announces he's joining a cult and moving to Phoenix with a blonde real estate agent. Through a year of terrible dates peppered with a few great experiences and a lot of pinot noir, the author learns that patterns can be changed, that asking for help is sometimes necessary, and that there's only one way to repair her brokenness by facing her trauma and demons head-on. With a unique mix of humor, self-deprecation and gritty vulnerability, this dark yet hopeful memoir tackles divorce, dating, single motherhood, PTSD, grief, loss and starting over in midlife. From emotional rock bottom to a peaceful acceptance of the woman she truly is, Lithgow finds the humor in the blackness, redemption in the pathos and fulfillment in the idea that happily ever after isn't always a storybook ending and doesn't need to be.
