Emilia Pardo Bazán Maurice Hemingway,2009-10-29 At the end of the nineteenth century Emilia Pardo Bazán was Spain's leading woman novelist and short story writer and also a critic journalist and fierce campaigner for women's rights This book examines Pardo Bazán's growth into maturity as a novelist during the late 1880s and the 1890s Hemingway argues against the convenient critical division of the author's works into an early Naturalist and later spiritual phase Concentrating on four novels published during this time the author demonstrates that Pardo Bazán's writing shows an increasing interest in psychology the ambiguity and irony evident in her treatment of characters motivation show her a subtle critic of the claims of science to explain human behaviour illustrated in the work of Zola and his followers Dr Hemingway stresses Pardo Bazán's originality as a writer deserving comparison with her compatriot Galdos and with contemporary French and Russian novelists This wider perspective will make the book of interest to students of the European novel generally as well as those in Spanish studies

The Making of a Novelist David Christie Murray,2015-04-24 life went unappreciated and that his long suffering devotion and the passion of jealousy which at length overcame him might have furnished Shakespeare himself with a theme as terrible as he found in Othello Anyway the man was to be hanged and I was deputed to attend the execution At that time I had never been a witness at a death scene I have seen thousands hurried out of life since then and though even now I should
