Student Writing In Higher Education New Contexts:

Student Writing in Higher Education Mary Rosalind Lea, Barry Stierer, 2000 This is the first book to examine student writing in the context of major changes taking place in today's higher education. For example, students now come to higher education from an increasingly wide range of cultural and linguistic backgrounds to study in a number of diverse learning environments. Their courses often no longer reflect traditional academic subject boundaries with their attendant values and norms; there is also an increasing recognition of the importance of lifelong learning and the necessity for universities to adapt their provision to make it possible for learners to enter and return to higher education at different points in their lives.

Academics Engaging with Student Writing Jackie Tuck, 2017-07-14 Student writing has long been viewed as a problem in higher education in the UK. Moreover, the sector has consistently performed poorly in the National Student Survey with regard to assessment and feedback. Academics Engaging with Student Writing tackles these major issues from a new and unique angle, exploring the real-life experiences of academic teachers from different institutions as they set, support, read, respond to, and assess assignments undertaken by undergraduate students. Incorporating evidence from post-1992 universities, Oxbridge members of the Russell Group, and others, this book examines working practices around student writing within the context of an increasingly market-oriented mass higher education system. Presenting a wealth of relevant examples from disciplines as diverse as History and Sports Science, Tuck makes extensive use of interviews, observations, texts, and audio recordings in order to explore the perspectives of academic teachers who work with student writers and their texts. This book will be of interest to researchers, academics, and postgraduate students in the fields of academic literacies, higher education language, and literacy language in higher education. English for academic purposes and assessment. Furthermore, academic teachers with experience of this crucial aspect of academic labour will welcome Tuck's pioneering work as an indispensable tool for making sense of their own engagement with student writers. Teaching Academic Writing in European Higher Education Lennart Björk, Gerd Bräuer, L. Rienecker, Peter Stray, Jörgensen, 2005-12-30 DAVID R. RUSSELL, English Department of Iowa State University, U.S.A. I was fortunate to attend as a visitor from the U.S. the first European Association for the Teaching of Academic Writing (EATAW) conference in 2001 at Groningen. I was struck by the similarities in the challenges higher education faces on both sides of the Atlantic in terms of developing students' academic writing and students learning through writing. It is indeed an international problem. But I was equally struck by the profound differences in responding to these challenges among nations, institutions, disciplines, and even within disciplines. The essays in this extraordinary volume address a growing demand for help with academic writing on the part of students and academic staff alike. And they do so in ways that bring fresh approaches not only to Europeans who have only recently begun to study academic writing but also to researchers and academic staff in the U.S. where we have a century-old tradition of attention to the problem but are much in need of these fresh approaches. Academic writing has become a problem in higher education all around the world because higher education sits smack between two contradictory pressures On one end far more students and far more diverse students come streaming into higher education bringing in a far greater diversity of linguistic resources often interpreted as standards are falling as Frank Haacke Tente point out

Learning Development in Higher Education Peter Hartley, John Hilsdon, Christine Keenan, 2010-11-17 This book shows how Learning Development enhances the student experience and promotes active engagement Written by staff from the UK's largest collaborative Centre for Excellence in Teaching and Learning CETL the book includes important insights for everyone interested in supporting student retention progression and success
