The Chambered Tombs Of Scotland Two Volume Set:

The Chambered Tombs of Scotland Audrey S. Henshall, 1963      A View from the West Vicki Cummings, 2009-11-13
At the heart of this study are the early Neolithic chambered tombs of the Irish Sea zone defined as west Wales the west coast of northern Britain coastal south and western Scotland the western isles and the Isle of Man and the eastern coast of Ireland In order to understand these monuments there must be a broader consideration of their landscape settings The landscape setting of the chambered tombs is considered in detail both overall and through a number of specific case studies incorporating a much wider area than has been previously considered Cummings investigates the background against which the Neolithic began in the Irish Sea zone and what led to the adoption of Neolithic practices such as the construction of monuments Following on from this she considers what the chambered tombs and landscape can add to our understanding of the Mesolithic Neolithic transition This volume aims to incorporate landscape analysis into a broader understanding of the Neolithic sequence in this area and beyond It will provide an introduction to the Mesolithic and Neolithic of the Irish Sea zone as well as a summary of previous work on this subject It also offers a starting point for future research and a better understanding of this area      Antiquity Osbert Guy Stanhope Crawford, 2002 Includes section Reviews      The Prehistoric Peoples of Scotland Stuart Piggott, 2014-10-30 Based on lectures given at the Conference of the British Summer School of Archaeology at Edinburgh in 1954 this book published in 1962 surveys the general field of pre historic Scotland five archaeologists each contributing chapters discussing the main aspects and problems that have presented themselves in specialised research areas From the first peopling of the area by human communities with hunting and food gathering economies to field antiquities and the introduction of copper and bronze metallurgy and on to the first settlement by Celtic speakers and the links to the first historically documented Scotland Contributors R J C Atkinson G E Daniel T G E Powell and C A R Radford      Space, Place and Religious Landscapes Darrelyn Gunzburg, Bernadette Brady, 2020-10-01 Exploring sacred mountains around the world this book examines whether bonding and reverence to a mountain is intrinsic to the mountain constructed by people or a mutual encounter Chapters explore mountains in England Scotland Wales Italy Ireland the Himalaya Japan Greece USA Asia and South America and embrace the union of sky landscape and people to examine the religious dynamics between human and non human entities This book takes as its starting point the fact that mountains physically mediate between land and sky and act as metaphors for bridges from one realm to another recognising that mountains are relational and that landscapes form personal and group cosmologies The book fuses ideas of space place and material religion with cultural environmentalism and takes an interconnected approach to material religio landscapes In this way it fills the gap between lived religious traditions personal reflection phenomenology historical context environmental philosophy myths and performativity In defining material religion as active engagement with mountain forming and humanshaping landscapes the research and ideas presented here provide theories that are widely applicable to other forms of material religion      Barra Patrick Foster,1995-01-01 Over the past six years a team of archaeologists historians and environmental scientists from the University of Sheffield explored the island of Barra They have discovered and recorded many hundreds of previously unknown sites and monuments excavated selected examples and carried out extensive environmental sampling and laboratory based analysis of all this evidence The first volume of reports focuses on the wild and rocky peninsula of Tangaval at the south western corner of the island In this seemingly inhospitable place on the westernmost margin of Europe perched on the very edge of the Atlantic Ocean the team have discovered almost 250 sites and monuments They range from the first rock shelter and occupation huts of the earliest settlers around 4000 BC to the abandoned settlements from which Macneils sailed to new homes in America and Australasia in the mid nineteenth century BC      Proceedings of the Prehistoric Society for ... ,2002      Land and Society in Neolithic Orkney David Fraser,1983      Set in Stone Vicki Cummings,Amelia Pannett,2005 As its title might suggest this volume sets out to present a new view of Scotland s Neolithic as seen via its monumental structures The papers brought together here came out of a research day at Cardiff University s School of History and Archaeology in January 2002 and cover a diverse number of topics They raise questions of ancestry and worldview and highlight the amount that can be done in examining the settings of monuments      The Chambered Tombs of the Isle of Man Audrey S. Henshall,2017 This is the first book ever devoted to the chambered tombs of the Isle of Man and though there are no more than nine surviving monuments they are of considerable interest and importance because of the central location of the island in the north Irish Sea where cultural influences and traditions of tomb building are mixed and no doubt populations too These monuments still impressive reminders of the past in our contemporary landscape belong to the early 4th millennium BC when farming one of the most significant movers of change in society first came to the Isle of Man These vast stone chambers speak of the power of ancestors the continuity of family groups and the importance of the land and territory which sustained them Work on this book was begun in the 1960s by Audrey Henshall the foremost authority on these monuments in Britain It has been edited and brought up to date for publication by Frances Lynch and Peter Davey and contains a comprehensive study of previous work on the tombs new plans and commentary on each site and also a review of the associated finds from excavation Appendices provide the final reports on previously unpublished excavations at King Orry s Grave and Ballaharra

Excavations at Northton, Isle of Harris Derek Douglas Alexander Simpson,Eileen M. Murphy,Richard A. Gregory,2006 This volume presents the site of Northton in the Western Isles of Scotland at Toe Head on Harris During excavations in 1965 and 1966 two early horizons were identified beneath and close to the base of the machair sands With excavation the stratigraphically later of these horizons furnished evidence for a probable stone structure funerary and faunal remains and an abundance of artefacts particularly pottery which in turn dated the horizon to the Neolithic period In contrast the lower horizon lay directly above the natural boulder clay was sealed by the machair sands and contained a general paucity of faunal and artefactual remains Due to the discovery of one small sherd of Neolithic pottery it was assumed however that this horizon might represent an earlier phase of Neolithic occupation During a brief season of fieldwork in 2001 a seemingly comparable horizon which also rested above the boulder clay was identified in a section which had been exposed through coastal erosion Following a limited investigation this basal horizon produced evidence for human activity in the form of possible stone settings charred plant macrofossils faunal remains and a small assemblage of chipped stone artefacts Significantly a series of dates obtained from the plant macrofossils indicate that this material is unambiguously of the Mesolithic period Whilst these somewhat unexpected results have major implications for constructing the internal chronology of the site as they appear to extend human activity at Northton back to the seventh millennium cal BC they are also of considerable interest at both a regional and national level as they may represent the first direct evidence for Mesolithic activity in the Western Isles The volume has chapters on the site s early occupation the Beaker period Bronze Iron and later periods and a history of the Northton Machair There are six Appendices and Catalogues of finds and data Proceedings of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland Society of Antiquaries of Scotland,1996 Includes List of members The Publishers' Trade List Annual ,1977 The Chambered Cairns of Orkney J. L. Davidson,Audrey S. Henshall,1989 Journal of Iberian Archaeology ,2006 The Neolithic of the Irish Sea Chris Fowler,2015-03-31 This collection of 24 papers aims to reconsider the nature and significance of the Irish Sea as an area of cultural interaction during the Neolithic period The traditional character of work across this region has emphasised the existence of prehistoric contact with sea routes criss crossing between Ireland the Isle of Man Anglesey and the British mainland A parallel course of investigation however has demonstrated that the British and Irish Neolithics were in many ways different with distinct indigenous patterns of activity and social practices The recent emphasis on regional studies has further produced evidence for parallel yet different processes of cultural change taking place throughout the British Isles as a whole This volume brings together some of these regional perspectives and compares them across the Irish Sea area The authors consider new ways to explain regional patterning in the use of material objects and relate them to past practices and social strategies Were there practices that were shared across the Irish Sea area linking different styles of monuments and material culture or were the media intrinsic to the message The volume is based on papers presented at a conference held at the University of Manchester in 2002

Prehistoric Journeys Vicki Cummings,Robert Johnston,2007 This collection of thirteen papers focuses on what it meant to be on the move at different times in prehistory Ideas of journeys and travel are integral to many traditions of interpreting the prehistoric archaeological record Travel was after all the driving force behind the formation and trans formation of identity How ironic it is that this feature of prehistory has been so overlooked when the ancient world s discovery in the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries occurred primarily as the result of travel The contributors to this volume see journeys as an integral part of prehistoric life socially meaningful which must be understood within their pre historic contexts

Vessels for the Ancestors Niall M. Sharples, Alison Sheridan, 1992 In this volume a group of distinguished prehistorians present the latest work on the Neolithic of the north and west of Britain and Ireland areas with some of the most impressive monuments and material culture in north west Europe The contents are presented in four sections funerary studies megalithic art artefact studies and regional studies Traditional scholarly presentations are combined with contemporary theoretical approaches and methodological discussion A substantial quantity of hitherto unpublished material is incorporated The papers serve to transform our understanding of the Neolithic of these areas and are guaranteed to stimulate lively discussion Contributors include not only well known archaeologists such as Richard Bradley Roger Mercer and George Eogan but also younger scholars active in contemporary Neolithic studies such as Ann MacSween Rosamund Cleal Gabriel Cooney and Mark Edmonds BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved
