Assessment and Instruction of Reading and Writing Difficulty Marjorie Y. Lipson, Karen K. Wixson, 2003 Focusing on ability disability and reading writing from an interactive perspective this text emphasizes the importance of determining and establishing the appropriate learning environment for the individual learner. Extensive in depth treatment of current research and best practices make this text a must have addition to any current or future teacher's library. Section I Chs 1-3 provides the readers with a strong comprehensive knowledge of reading writing research and assessment practices from which readers can move forward to the second and third sections of the text Chs 4-10 which contain detailed discussions and examples of assessment practices. Traditional assessments of students are fully explored and two chapters are devoted to assessing context factors like instructional methods and materials and tasks. Both classroom based and standardized assessments are described. Section IV stands alone as an important chapter linking assessment to instruction by means of diagnostic instruction. Section V (Ch 12-15) is devoted to instructional practices designed to improve reading and writing instruction for struggling students. Chapters on word recognition, vocabulary, comprehension, composition and high utility strategies address the major components of literacy development. In the final section (Ch 16) issues related to professional standards and written reports are addressed. Feminist Collections University of Wisconsin System. Houghton Mifflin the Nation's Choice, 2000-04-20 The Red Soils of China M.J. Wilson, Zhenli He, Xiaoae Yang, 2004-05-31 The red soils of China are typical in their chemical, physical and mineralogical characteristics of red soils in other tropical and sub-tropical areas of the world, particularly in South America, Africa and south east Asia. For the most part these soils are highly weathered and inherently infertile. They are acidic, nutrient deficient, poor in organic matter and have a low water holding and supplying capacity. They cannot sustain arable cropping systems without the most careful management and are highly susceptible to soil erosion, particularly on sloping land. It is the purpose of this book to present recent research showing how the problems associated with using the red soils in China for sustainable agricultural production can be overcome using a variety of traditional and novel approaches. In principle these approaches should be useful in other tropical and sub-tropical countries faced with the problem of making the best use of their fragile red soil resources. The term 'in principle' is used deliberately because, of course, the different red soil countries invariably operate within dissimilar socio-economic frameworks. At the present time, China may be considered to be in the process of an industrial revolution, rather like that which took place in Britain in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries.

Asian Folklore Studies, 1963 Visualizing Love and Longing in Song Dynasty Paintings of Women Lara Caroline Williams Blanchard, 2001 The nature of emotion, particularly how it is manifested, has been a concern of Chinese theorists since the early imperial period. One way that this concern came to be expressed in certain genres of Chinese art and literature was in the conception of elite women as preoccupied with romance. In the Song dynasty (960-1279), painters and poets engage in an extensive dialogue on the meanings of attachments between men and women with the stages of the love relationship coded as desire, love, longing and heartbreak. An examination of extant paintings from this period reveals that this construction pervades the cultural productions of both court figures and intellectuals. This dissertation analyzes Song dynasty paintings of women in love in light of the construction of both femininity and masculinity, the nature of representation and text-image relationships, and considers the authorship and reception of these works. □□□□ □□□, □□□, 2005 A to Zoo Carolyn W.
