The Degeneracy Crisis and Victorian Youth Thomas Edward Jordan, 1993-01-01 A book in the ecology of child development The Degeneracy Crisis and Victorian Youth studies stress in the lives of children in the Victorian age 1837 1901 The term degeneracy is pursued in the context of biosocial problems especially those involving the young The book begins by presenting an overview of the nineteenth century noting the changes in population urbanization the reform movement and the rise of Darwinism It next examines the social and health contexts in which human development took place considering genetics nutrition health mortality and climate Jordan then addresses empirically the nature of growth in Victorian children and young adults presenting height and health data and using them as the dependent measure for descriptive and multivariate analysis of the Victorian economy The concept of degeneracy the evolution of social policy and the efforts of specific reformers are discussed with attention to the role of government policy toward the end of the period The Degeneracy Crisis and Victorian Youth Thomas Edward Jordan, 1991 Inventing Pollution Peter Thorsheim, 2006-02-15 Britain's supremacy in the nineteenth century depended in large part on its vast deposits of coal This coal not only powered steam engines in factories ships and railway locomotives but also warmed homes and cooked food As coal consumption skyrocketed the air in Britain's cities and towns became filled with ever greater and denser clouds of smoke In this far reaching study Peter Thorsheim explains that for much of the nineteenth century few people in Britain even considered coal smoke to be pollution To them pollution meant miasma invisible gases generated by decomposing plant and animal matter Far from viewing coal smoke as pollution most people considered smoke to be a valuable disinfectant for its carbon and sulfur were thought capable of rendering miasma harmless Inventing Pollution examines the radically new understanding of pollution that emerged in the late nineteenth century one that centered not on organic decay but on coal combustion This change as Peter Thorsheim argues gave birth to the smoke abatement movement and to new ways of thinking about the relationships among humanity technology and the environment Juvenile Nation Stephanie Olsen, 2014-01-16 In the first five months of the Great War one million men volunteered to fight Yet by the end of 1915 the British government realized that conscription would be required Why did so many enlist and conversely why so few Focusing on analyses of widely felt emotions related to moral and domestic duty Juvenile Nation broaches these questions in new ways Juvenile Nation examines how religious and secular youth groups the juvenile periodical press and a burgeoning new group of child psychologists social workers and other experts affected society's perception of a new problem character the adolescent By what means should this character be turned into a fit citizen Considering qualities such as loyalty character temperance manliness fatherhood and piety Stephanie Olsen discusses the idea of an informal education focused on building character through emotional control and how this education was seen as key to shaping the future citizenry of Britain and the Empire Juvenile Nation recasts the militarism of the 1880s onwards as part of an emotional outpouring based on association to family to community and to Christian cultural continuity. Significantly the same emotional responses explain why so many men turned away from active militarism with duty to family and community perhaps thought to have been best carried out at home. By linking the historical study of the emotions with an examination of the individual's place in society Olsen provides an important new insight on how a generation of young men was formed. Nineteenth Century Prose, 1994 Quality of Life and Mortality Among Children Thomas E. Jordan, 2012-04-25 This brief examines mortality among young children in the period from the seventeenth to the nineteenth century. It does so using several types and sources of information from the census unit England and Wales and from Ireland. The sources of information used in this study include memoirs, diaries, poems, church records and numerical accounts. They offer descriptions of the quality of life and child mortality over the three centuries under study. Additional sources for the nineteenth century are two census derived numerical indexes of the quality of life. They are the VICQUAL index for England and Wales and the QUALEIRE index for Ireland. Statistical procedures have been applied to the numbers provided by the sources with the aim to identify effects of and associations between such variables as gender, age and social background. The brief examines the results to consider the impact of children's deaths upon parents and families and concludes that there are differences and continuities across the centuries. Manliness and the Boys' Story Paper in Britain: A Cultural History, 1855-1940 K. Boyd, 2002-11-04 In this pioneering work about the precursor to the comic book Kelly Boyd traces the evolution of the boys story paper and its impact on the imaginative world of working class readers. From the penny dreadful and the Boy's Own Paper to the tales of Billy Bunter and Sexton Blake this cultural form shaped ideas about gender, race, class and empire in response to social change. This study is an important analysis of a neglected part of popular culture. Fictions of Loss in the Victorian Fin de Siècle Stephen Arata, 1996 It has been widely recognised that British culture in the 1880s and 1890s was marked by a sense of irretrievable decline. Fictions of Loss in the Victorian Fin de Siècle explores the ways in which that perception of loss was cast into narrative into archetypal stories which sought to account for the culture's troubles and perhaps assuage its anxieties. Stephen Arata pays close attention to fin de siècle representation of three forms of decline: national, biological and aesthetic and reveals how late Victorian degeneration theory was used to explain such decline. By examining a wide range of writers from Kipling to Wilde from Symonds to Conan Doyle and Stoker Arata shows how the nation's twin obsessions with decadence and imperialism became intertwined in the thought of the period. His account offers new insights for students and scholars of the fin de siècle. Victorian Review, 1993 Home Children Bundle Mary Pettit, Gail H. Corbett, Marjorie Kohli, Kenneth Bagnell, 2013-12-26 In the early years after Confederation in Canada the rising nation needed workers that could take advantage of the abundant resources. Until the time of the Depression 100 000 impoverished children from the British Isles were sent overseas by well meaning philanthropists to solve the colony's farm labour shortage. They were known as the home children and they were lonely and frightened youngsters to whom a new life in Canada meant only hardship and abuse. This bundle of titles tells the entire story from many angles and in its many facets from historical recounting to genealogical information to the personal story one such child Mary Janeway Includes The Golden Bridge The Little Immigrants Mary Janeway Nation Builders Whatever Happened to Mary Janeway The Victorian Town Child Pamela Horn,1997 The rise of urban society saw a great majority of people living in towns at the end of the 19th century and in industrial centres the proportion of children was well above the national average Horn examines their lifestyles and attitudes to them War Pedagogy and Youth Culture Andrew C. Donson,2000 Ireland's Children Thomas E. Jordan,1998-11-24 A quantitative analysis of the situation of Ireland s children during the famine era 1841 1861 this study utilizes census data to construct a series of indices to measure the quality of life for children in each of Ireland s 32 counties While relatively little is known about the particular effects of the famine on childhood census records from 1841 1851 and 1861 do exist Jordan also considers anthropometric data on military recruits emigration figures school enrollment church records and contemporary accounts to build a picture of Ireland s children This comparative approach provides a wealth of information on family life in Ireland at both the county and the provincial levels It addresses the role of home and school as a model of socialization and the use of emigration as a coping device The author also explores the social climate created by the 1838 Poor Law Ultimately the stress of struggling to survive the natural disaster of the famine combined with the political developments of the day had a devastating effect on the young Mental Retardation ,2000 When Science Encounters the Child Barbara Beatty,Emily D. Cahan,Julia Grant,2006-07-19 This provocative volume takes a critical look at how the social sciences and psychology in particular have been applied to the lives of children particularly in education parenting and child welfare Contributions by senior scholars and promising new voices offer fresh balanced perspectives on key questions What role has science played in perpetuating discrimination and inequality among different groups of children How has science been employed in the politics of program formulation advocacy and funding How has science been used to justify the practices of child professionals How have parents and children responded to scientific ventures designed to help them Co edited by a historian of education a historian of childhood and a developmental psychologist this book features An overview of the last century s efforts to understand children by means of scientific methods A cogent examination of how scientific research was translated into programs and policies such as Universal Pre K and the No Child Left Behind Act in response to social needs Enlightening case studies of the intersection of the child sciences with professional and lay practices children and families and social reformers Voices of teachers social workers and other professionals working with children The First Decade of Life: The child from five to ten years Thomas Edward Jordan,1997 From the base reported in Volume I the data of this work extend the sequence of events in several domains to age ten years The predictors series consists of four arrays of variables from the early phases of child development International Journal of Comparative and Applied Criminal Justice ,1993 Ireland and the Quality of Life Thomas Edward Jordan,1997 From the 1841 census the author has constructed a ten variable index of the quality of life in each of Ireland's thirty two counties and four provinces The index is repeated for 1861 The empirical statistical perspective is supplemented by narrative accounts Includes illustrations from The Illustrated London News the Pictorial Times and the humor magazine Punch ASDC Journal of Dentistry for Children,1999 Proceedings of the Eighth Annual Conference of the British Association for Biological Anthropology and Osteoarchaeology British Association for Biological Anthropology and Osteoarchaeology.
