The Glass Wall

George Frederick Barker

The Glass Wall:

The Glass Wall Max Egremont, 2022-02-08 Max Egremont author of Some Desperate Glory tells stories from the Glass Wall between Europe and Asia. Few countries have suffered more from the convulsions and bloodshed of twentieth century Europe than those in the eastern Baltic region. Caught between the giants of Germany and Russia on a route across which armies surged or retreated, small nations like Latvia and Estonia were for centuries the subjects of conquests and domination as foreign colonizers claimed control of the territory and its inhabitants along with their religion, government, and culture. The Glass Wall features an extraordinary cast of characters, contemporary and historical, foreign and indigenous, who have lived and fought in the Baltic western Europe's easternmost stronghold. Too often the destiny of this region has seemed to be to serve as the front line in other people's wars. By telling the stories of warriors and victims, of philosophers and barons, of poets and artists, of rebels and emperors, and of others who lived through years of turmoil and violence, Max Egremont sets forth a brilliant account of a long overlooked region on a frontier whose limits may still be in doubt. Handbook of Glass

Fractography R. C. Ropp, 2008 RICHARD STERLING SAWYER has now finally published Wildcatting The Hills of Kettleman, an original 1936 manuscript written by his Grandfather Ted Sterling and his Great Aunt Eloise Sterling Hirt. This unknown manuscript WILDCATTING was found in an old dusty file box upon Ted's death in 2001. Eloise was Ted's older sister and a prolific writer and actress having helped form the original Pasadena Playhouse Theater in the 1920's. Ted was a successful attorney and land man for The Texas Company, TEXACO, and previously involved with these oilmen and the companies who drilled the first big successful oil well in the Kettleman Hills in 1928. This is a rare Novel with engaging characters that you will not be able to put down until the final chapter is absorbed. A beautiful rags to riches love story that reads like a historic movie script while the real vision of life's wheeling and dealing is played out in 1928 Los Angeles, New York, Santa Barbara, Montecito, San Francisco, Hanford, and The Kettleman Hills. These are accurate descriptions of the actual places and people's attitudes of the time. Eloise has her own writing style and dramatic force that keeps you engaged in every facet of her storytelling while Ted's knowledge of the local geology and wildcat oil business is uniquely insightful. WILDCATTING THE HILLS OF KETTLEMAN is filled with historic photos, details about the authors, and an epilogue section with historical notes. This insightful story and theatrical writing combines to produce a tale of love and intrigue about one of California's great historic discoveries. Glass Walls and Glass Ceilings Margaret Reid, William Miller, Brinck Kerr, 2003-12-30 Reid, Kerr, and Miller seek to redress the lack of systematic generalizable research on women's representation in state and municipal bureaucracies by focusing specifically on the representation of female managers in high level policy and decision making positions in their agencies or departments. Their primary interest is in examining the distribution of women and men in state and municipal administrative and professional positions by agency and over time from 1987 through 1997 in order to determine if first agency missions are associated with glass walls and glass ceilings and second whether relative to white women African American women and Latinas have made progress in laying claim to a greater share of managerial positions in public sector agencies Their analysis reveals a richly textured and complicated set of factors and interrelationships that vary widely across different policy areas agency contexts and levels of government They show continued patterns of underrepresentation in agencies with regulatory and distributive policy commitments while showing some improvements in those agencies that tend to be traditionally populated by women health welfare and social services for example
