Stout, 2010-06-02 Nero Wolfe was almost as famous for his wealthy clients and extravagant fees as for his genius at detection. So why has he accepted a case for 430? And why have the last two people to hire him been ruthlessly murdered? Wolfe suspects the answers may lie in the story of a twelve-year-old boy who turns up at the door of his West Thirty-fifth Street brownstone. In short order, Wolfe finds himself confronted by one of his most perplexing and pressing cases involving a curious set of clues: a gray Cadillac, a mysterious woman, and a pair of earrings shaped like spiders dipped in gold. The case is all boiling down to a strange taste of greed and a grumpy gourmand's unappeasable appetite for truth. Introduction by Linda Barnes. It is always a treat to read a Nero Wolfe mystery. The man has entered our folklore. The New York Times Book Review. A grand master of the form, Rex Stout is one of America's greatest mystery writers, and his literary creation Nero Wolfe is one of the greatest fictional detectives of all time. Together, Stout and Wolfe have entertained and puzzled millions of mystery fans around the world. Now, with his perambulatory man-about-town Archie Goodwin, the arrogant gourmandizing sedentary sleuth is back in the original seventy-three cases of crime and detection written by the inimitable master himself, Rex Stout. The

The Golden Spider Francis Lynde, 1900-01-01

There wasn't much suggestion of a canyon lost or found in the handsomely furnished office in the Brewster National Bank building where three young fellows in flannel shirts, belted corduroys, and hobnailed lace boots were waiting for the owner of the office to make his appearance. Of the three, only the middle-sized one, a good-looking chap whose rough outing clothes fitted him as if they were tailor-made, was showing signs of impatience. The biggest of the three, a square-shouldered young athlete with good gray eyes set wide apart and a shock of dark red curly hair, was standing at a window which commanded a magnificent view of the high forested mountain range lifting the skyline to the westward. While the other member of the trio, an undersized fellow with a thin, eager face and pale blue eyes, was examining the mineral specimens in a corner cabinet. "Gee, I wish Uncle Billy would come," said the impatient one, jumping up to make a restless circuit of the room. "We don't want to miss that train." The big fellow turned from his window. "You're sure he got in last night?" he said. "Oh, yes, they came in on the Flyer." Aunt Stella called mother over the phone after the train got in, just to let us know. But I wish he'd come. We don't want to lose another single day of this bully weather. Dick Maxwell's impatience was not altogether unreasonable. Ten days earlier, Mr. William Starbuck, the Uncle Billy in question, had made a short stop in the Middle Western college town where Dick and his two companions were just winding up their Freshman year and had asked Dick how he was meaning to spend the long vacation. One thing had brought on another, and the upshot of the talk was an offer on the part of Uncle Billy to send Dick and any two of his college mates he might pick out on a summer prospecting trip in the Hophra Mountains, the object in view being the possible discovery, not especially of silver or gold, but more particularly of new sources of supply of the rare metals tungsten, vanadium, molybdenum.

and the like used in the arts and manufactures Dick hadn't wasted a moment in choosing the first of his companions for the summer outing Larry Donovan the big fellow at the office window son of a crippled locomotive engineer on the home railroad had been his chum from their grade school days in Brewster and the two had spent the preceding summer together as cubs on the engineering staff of the railroad of which Dick's father was the general manager so Larry was promptly elected as Number Two in the prospecting trip For the third member they had both picked upon Charles Purdick Larry's roommate in college for several reasons for one thing Little Purdy was a pretty good plain cook and for another he needed the wages that Mr William Starbuck was going to pay each member of the prospecting party irrespective of the success of the trip in the discovery of any new mineral deposits

The Golden Spiders Rex Stout, 1979 Some Buried Caesar/The Golden Spiders Rex Stout, 2013-07-17 Nero Wolfe towers over his rivals he is an exceptional character creation New Yorker A grand master of the form Rex Stout is one of America's greatest mystery writers and his literary creation Nero Wolfe is one of fiction's greatest detectives Here in this special double edition the arrogant gourmandizing sedentary sleuth and his trusty man about town Archie Goodwin solve two of their most bizarre cases Some Buried Caesar A prize bull destined for the barbecue is found pawing the corpse of a late restaurateur Wolfe is certain that Hickory Caesar Grindon the soon to be beefsteak bull isn't the murderer But who among a veritable stampede of suspects including a young woman who's caught Archie's eye turned the tables on Hickory's would be butcher It's a crime that wins a blue ribbon for sheer audacity and Nero Wolfe is the one detective audacious enough to solve it The Golden Spiders A twelve year old boy shows up at Wolfe's brownstone with an incredible story Soon the great detective finds himself hired for the grand sum of 4 30 and faced with the question of why the last two people to hire him were murdered To keep it from becoming three Wolfe must discover the unlikely connection between a gray Cadillac a mysterious woman and a pair of earrings shaped like spiders dipped in gold
