The British Seafarer Michael Mason, Basil Greenhill, Robin Craig, 1980 The British Seafarer Discovered Michael Mason, Basil Greenhill, Robin Craig, 1980 The World of the Seafarer Victor Oyaro Gekara, Helen Sampson, 2020-12-03

This open access book constitutes an ethnographic mosaic which depicts the contextual complexities of the life and work of seafarers who are employed in the international merchant cargo fleet. The collection is based upon the observations and interviews of researchers in multiple disciplines. It is woven together to offer a richly detailed insight into the ways in which a complex global industry operates internationally. The book covers issues to do with career decisions and recruitment, gender, life and work on board multinational vessels, health and safety issues, the regulation of the industry, shipboard roles and role conflict, and the representation of workers. It will be of considerable interest to all students globally who are studying for professional seafaring qualifications, to graduate students studying for masters courses in ship and port management, and to welfare professionals and policy makers. It is of special interest to those connected to the shipping industry who specialize in issues relating to the human element and will serve as a paradigm defining text in this area.

The British Seaman 1200-1860 Christopher Lloyd, 1970. There are dozens of books on the great figures in naval history such as Drake and Nelson. By contrast, very little has appeared in print about the British seaman without whom there would have been neither merchant ships to sail nor men of war to command. Apart from vague ideas about the press gang and the mutinies at Spithead and the Nore, more people have little conception of what his life was like even in such important matters as how he was recruited or paid or fed. His courage, his seamanship, his endurance have always been taken for granted. It is Professor Lloyd's achievement to have rescued him from anonymity and to have portrayed him in his true colors. Taken from the dust jacket.

The Maritime and Coastguard Agency's Response to Growth in the UK Merchant Fleet Great Britain. National Audit Office, 2009. This report focuses on how the Maritime and Coastguard Agency has responded to growth in the UK registered merchant shipping fleet. The Agency is responsible for maintaining the safety, security, and environmental standards of commercial vessels flying the UK flag. In 2000, the Government introduced tonnage tax as part of a package of measures designed to reverse the long-term decline in the UK registered merchant shipping fleet. Tonnage tax allows a company operating a vessel controlled from the UK to opt to pay tax on the basis of its tonnage rather than the profit on the vessel's trading activities. Since then, the number of merchant vessels joining the UK Ship Register has increased from 1,050 vessels in 2000 to 1,518 by the end of 2007. The Agency responded with measures such as delegating to classification societies more of the survey work on vessel structure and equipment. It retains the survey work related to safety management systems and all the inspection work. Since 2000, it has met or exceeded most of its targets for this work with fewer marine surveyors than during the 1990s. In 2007/08, for the first time, the Agency missed some of its targets for inspections of UK vessels. The risk is that vessels not complying with UK and international regulations will operate without detection. The Agency faces challenges as its capacity to meet ship inspection targets is stretched international competition for skilled mariners intensifies and competing flags improve their performance eroding the UK's quality advantage The report concludes that despite these challenges the Agency's achievement in supporting the growth of the merchant fleet without significant extra resources has been an efficient use of taxpayer's money Social Security Bulletin ,1946 House of Commons - Transport Committee: Forging Ahead?: UK Shipping Strategy - HC 630 Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Transport Committee,Louise Ellman,2014-03-26 UK is a globally competitive location for shipping The maritime sector earns 8 8 11 8 billion for the economy and supports 214 000 jobs The Government's new maritime strategy poses the right questions about UK shipping but does not yet provide compelling answers on a range of key points In particular it is unclear how the Government plans to address the looming skills gap whereby the UK will have 5 000 fewer deck and engineering officers than the UK's maritime sector is predicted to require by 2021 The Committee recommends that the Government make an explicit commitment to address fully a significant looming shortfall in UK trained seafarers partly through the Tonnage Tax SMaRT funding and apprenticeships commission an independent review of the MCA to evaluate how far a ongoing budget cuts may weaken the UK's ability to enforce compliance with international shipping regulations undermine its status as a high quality flag nation and shrink its influence within the International Maritime Organisation review the support the UK provides through its oversight of the Red Ensign Group to a number of competing registries of crown dependencies and UK overseas territories to raise the standards of the vessels which fly under the this flag implement stronger seamanship qualifications by 2016 for the crew of all transfer vessels taking staff to and from offshore wind farm installations and to call for voluntary compliance with these higher standards before that deadline and support London International Shipping Week 2015 but showcase shipping around the country The British Motor Ship ,1952 (Course of papers).
