The Death Of The Body:

Death and the Body in Bronze Age Europe Marie Louise Stig Sørensen, Katharina Rebay-Salisbury, 2023-01-05 This volume offers new insights into the radical shift in attitudes towards death and the dead body that occurred in temperate Bronze Age Europe Exploring the introduction and eventual dominance of cremation Marie Louise Stig Sørensen and Katharina Rebay Salisbury apply a case study approach to investigate how this transformation unfolded within local communities located throughout central to northern Europe They demonstrate the deep link between the living and the dead body and propose that the introduction of cremation was a significant ontological challenge to traditional ideas about death In tracing the responses to this challenge the authors focus on three fields of action the treatment of the dead body the construction of a burial place and ongoing relationships with the dead body after burial Interrogating cultural change at its most fundamental level the authors elucidate the fundamental tension between openness towards the new and the conservative pull of the familiar and traditional

Social Bodies Helen Lambert, Maryon McDonald, 2009 A proliferation of press headlines social science texts and ethical concerns about the social implications of recent developments in human genetics and biomedicine have created a sense that at least in European and American contexts both the way we treat the human body and our attitudes towards it have changed This volume asks what really happens to social relations in the face of new types of transaction such as organ donation forensic identification and other new medical and reproductive technologies that involve the use of corporeal material Drawing on comparative insights into how human biological material is treated it aims to consider how far human bodies and their components are themselves inherently social The case studies ranging from animal human transformations in Amazonia to forensic reconstruction in post conflict Serbia and the treatment of Native American specimens in English museums all underline that without social relations there are no bodies but only human remains The volume gives us new and striking ethnographic insights into bodies as sociality as well as a potentially powerful analytical reconsideration of notions of embodiment It makes a novel contribution too to science and society debates

Over Her Dead Body Elisabeth Bronfen, 1992 In 1846 Edgar Allan Poe wrote that the death of a beautiful woman is unquestionably the most poetic topic in the world The conjunction of death art and femininity forms a rich and disturbing strata of Western culture explored here in fascinating detail by Elisabeth Bronfen Her examples range from Carmen to Little Nell from Wuthering Heights to Vertigo from Snow White to Frankenstein The text is richly illustrated throughout with thirty seven paintings and photographs The argument that this book presents is that narrative and visual representations of death can be read as symptoms of our culture and because the feminine body is culturally constructed as the superlative site of other and not me culture uses art to dream the deaths of beautiful women

Death and Changing Rituals J. Rasmus Brandt, Håkon Roland, Marina Prusac, 2014-07-31 The forms by which a deceased person may be brought to rest are as many as there are causes of death In most societies the disposal of the corpse is accompanied by some form of celebration or ritual which may range from a simple act of deportment in solitude to the engagement of large masses of people in laborious and creative festivities In a funerary context the term ritual may be taken to represent a process that incorporates all the actions performed and thoughts expressed in connection with a dying and dead person from the preparatory pre death stages to the final deposition of the corpse and the post mortem stages of grief and commemoration The contributions presented here are focused not on the examination of different funerary practices their function and meaning but on the changes of such rituals how and when they occurred and how they may be explained Based on case studies from a range of geographical regions and from different prehistoric and historical periods a range of key themes are examined concerning belief and ritual body and deposition place performance and commemoration exploring a complex web of practices
