Hargreaves,2003-01-01 This is a book of nine stories written for the author s children aged four to eight The first was told to primary school children in the class of her five year old son Ben The class teacher Jane wanted me to go in and tell stories to make Ben feel proud and make friends more quickly his new school I totally forgot about the engagement until reminded by Jane on the morning I was due to go in Arriving breathless I was given a chair to sit on and looked down at a sea of expectant little faces I had nothing written down NOT AN IDEA IN MY HEAD But from somewhere I heard myself saying Once upon a time there was a giant and there was a mouse They lived together in a house shaped like a knee sock The mouse had the flat at the top The giant had most of the foot part of the house because it was longer And away I went Pure inspiration That was twenty eight years ago The book was nearly published many times and finally having met a brilliant children s book illustrator Martin Hargreaves she decided to publish the C M herself Uncannily Martin visualised the two main characters the bustling house proud scolding mouse and the laid back fun loving giant just as she did producing beautiful paintings for nearly every page to illustrate amusing and sometimes unexpected episodes in their life together Things have come full circle Her book has been hailed as a new children s classic and Sandra reads from it to primary school and home educated children all over the country
