The Imam of the Christians Philip Wood, 2025-07-15 How Christian leaders adapted the governmental practices and political thought of their Muslim rulers in the Abbasid caliphate The Imam of the Christians examines how Christian leaders adopted and adapted the political practices and ideas of their Muslim rulers between 750 and 850 in the Abbasid caliphate in the Jazira modern eastern Turkey and northern Syria Focusing on the writings of Dionysius of Tel Mahre the patriarch of the Jacobite church Philip Wood describes how this encounter produced an Islamicate Christianity that differed from the Christianities of Byzantium and western Europe in far more than just theology In doing so Wood opens a new window on the world of early Islam and Muslims interactions with other religious communities Wood shows how Dionysius and other Christian clerics by forging close ties with Muslim elites were able to command greater power over their coreligionists such as the right to issue canons regulating the lives of lay people gather tithes and use state troops to arrest opponents In his writings Dionysius advertises his ease in the courts of Abd Allah ibn Tahir in Raqqa and the caliph al Ma mun in Baghdad presenting himself as an effective advocate for the interests of his fellow Christians because of his knowledge of Arabic and his ability to redeploy Islamic ideas to his own advantage Strikingly Dionysius even claims that like al Ma mun he is an imam since he leads his people in prayer and rules them by popular consent A wide ranging examination of Middle Eastern Christian life during a critical period in the development of Islam The Imam of the Christians is also a case study of the surprising workings of cultural and religious adaptation
