Speaking The Lower Frequencies Students And Media Literacy:

Speaking the Lower Frequencies Walter R. Jacobs, 2012-02-01 Speaking the Lower Frequencies demonstrates how students can be critical consumers of media while retaining the pleasure they derive from it In Walter R Jacobs s classes on media and society students use the instructor s experiences as a model for investigating their own histories By creating new social contexts and meanings the students learn to speak the lower frequencies Jacobs looks at the students reception and critique of pop culture texts like the movie I Like It Like That and the television show The X Files to provide evidence for the effects of alternative pedagogy on critical literacy He shows that when students are encouraged to be more than just passive receptors of the media they learn to develop active critical voices that they use both inside and outside the classroom Jacobs also explains how students can become more aware and active in attempts to create democratic possibilities for themselves and others

Handbook of Research on New Literacies Julie Coiro, Michele Knobel, Colin Lankshear, Donald J. Leu, 2014-04-04 Situated at the intersection of two of the most important areas in educational research today literacy and technology this handbook draws on the potential of each while carving out important new territory It provides leadership for this newly emerging field directing scholars to the major issues theoretical perspectives and interdisciplinary research pertaining to new literacies Reviews of research are organized into six sections Methodologies Knowledge and Inquiry Communication Popular Culture Community and Citizenship Everyday Literacies Instructional Practices and Assessment Multiple Perspectives on New Literacies Research FEATURES Brings together a diverse international team of editors and chapter authors Provides an extensive collection of research reviews in a critical area of educational research Makes visible the multiple perspectives and theoretical frames that currently drive work in new literacies Establishes important space for the emerging field of new literacies research Includes a unique Commentary section The final section of the Handbook reprints five central research studies Each is reviewed by two prominent researchers from their individual and different theoretical position This provides the field with a sense of how diverse lenses can be brought to bear on research as well as the benefits that accrue from doing so It also provides models of critical review for new scholars and demonstrates how one might bring multiple perspectives to the study of an area as complex as new literacies research The Handbook of Research on New Literacies is intended for the literacy research community broadly conceived including scholars and students from the traditional reading and writing research communities in education and educational psychology as well as those from information science cognitive science psychology sociolinguistics computer mediated communication and other related areas that find literacy to be an important area of investigation

Everyday Youth Literacies Kathy Sanford, Theresa Rogers, Maureen Kendrick, 2014-07-24 Testifying to the maturity of the youth literacy education field this collection of papers displays the increasing sophistication of research on the subject and at the same time offers pointers to its potential for development in the next decade The contributors track the rapid proliferation of youth literacies in today s digital age from video games to social media and film production Drawing on detailed research and an intimate knowledge of youth communities in nations as diverse as Canada and Uganda they provide notable examples of digital literacies in situ and challenge conventional wisdom about literacy education The chapters do more however than merely offer reportage of a crisis in literacy education The authors embrace the core challenge faced by educators everywhere how to incorporate and utilize new modes of literacy in education and how to realize the potential benefits of heterogeneous modern media in youth literacy education especially in marginalized remote and disadvantaged communities This volume expands our view of digital communications technologies and digital literacies to include complex understandings of how media such as translated videos can serve as learning tools for youths whose access to literacy education is limited In particular a number of contributing scholars provide important new information about the praxis of teachers and the literacies adopted by young people in Africa a continent largely neglected by literacy researchers This book s global perspective and its ground level viewpoint of youth literacy practices in a variety of locations problematizes normative assumptions about researching literacy as well as about literacy itself
