The Archaeology Of Ships:

The Archaeology of Boats & Ships Basil Greenhill, John S. Morrison, 1995 An updated and comprehensive archaeological review of the development of the world's boats and ships    Archaeology of the Boat Basil Greenhill, 1976    The archaeology of ships Paul Johnstone, 1970    The Archaeology of Ships of War Mensun Bound, 1995 One of two books based on the proceedings of the First International Conference on The Archaeology of Ships of War held at the Royal Naval College Greenwich from the 31st October to the 1st November 1992    A Maritime Archaeology of Ships J. R. Adams, 2013-12-11 In the last fifty years the investigation of maritime archaeological sites in the sea in the coastal zone and in their interconnecting locales has emerged as one of archaeology's most dynamic and fast developing fields. No longer a niche interest maritime archaeology is recognised as having central relevance in the integrated study of the human past. Within maritime archaeology the study of watercraft has been understandably prominent and yet their potential is far from exhausted. In this book Jon Adams evaluates key episodes of technical change in the ways that ships were conceived, designed, built, used and disposed of. As technological puzzles they have long confounded explanation but when viewed in the context of the societies in which they were created mysteries begin to dissolve. Shipbuilding is social practice and as one of the most complex artefacts made changes in their technology provide a lens through which to view the ideologies, strategies and agency of social change. Adams argues that the harnessing of shipbuilding was one of the ways in which medieval society became modern and while the primary case studies are historical he also demonstrates that the relationships between ships and society have key implications for our understanding of prehistory in which seafaring and communication had similarly profound effects on the tide of human affairs    Archaeology and the Social History of Ships Richard A. Gould, 2000-04-13 Maritime archaeology deals with shipwrecks and is carried out by divers rather than diggers. But this is by no means a marginal branch of archaeology. It embraces maritime history, analysing changes in ship building, navigation, reconstructing the infrastructure of waterborne commerce and offers fresh perspectives on the cultures and societies that produced the ships and sailors. Drawing on detailed and recent case studies Richard Gould provides an up to date review of the field and a clear exposition of new developments in undersea technologies. He also argues for the careful management of underwater cultural resources    Boats, Ships and Shipyards Carlo Beltrame, 2003 43 Rare Fragments of a 13th Century Clinker Galley found in London and Use of the Irish Wildwoods for Shipbuilding 44 Clenched Lap Strake Boat Finds from the Netherlands between 1200 and 1600 45 Illuminating Ships Integrating the Evidence from Images and Materials in Medieval Europe Joe Flatman 46 Squares and Stripes Remarks about Textiles Archaeology and Sails Susan Moller Wiering 47 Ships and Private Shipyards through the Archaeological Evidence of the Wreck off La Natiere Saint Malo Brittany France Michel L Hour and Elisabeth Veyrat 48 The Mysteries of a Baltic Trader Martijn R Manders 49 Whipstaff and Helmsman An Account of the Steering gear of the Vasa Olof Pipping 50 Maritime Ethnography The Reality of and the Social History of Ships Richard A. Gould,2011-04-29 Maritime archaeology deals with shipwrecks and is carried out by divers rather than diggers It embraces maritime history and analyses changes in shipbuilding navigation and seamanship and offers fresh perspectives on the cultures and societies that produced the ships and sailors Drawing on detailed past and recent case studies Richard A Gould provides an up to date review of the field that includes dramatic new findings arising from improved undersea technologies This second edition of Archaeology and the Social History of Ships has been updated throughout to reflect new findings and new interpretations of old sites The new edition explores advances in undersea technology in archaeology especially remotely operated vehicles The book reviews many of the major recent shipwreck findings including the Vasa in Stockholm the Viking wrecks at Roskilde Fjord and the Titanic

Mensun Bound,1998 Throughout history the fighting ship has been one of the finest expressions of technology of which any society at any moment is capable Intended as a companion volume to The Archaeology of Ships of War this book brings together a selection of many of the most important warship excavations by some of the world's most respected maritime archaeologists

The Life and Times of a Merchant Sailor

Jason M. Burns,2012-12-06 Historical archaeologists are in a unique position to analyze both historical documents and archaeological data in order to generate hypotheses and draw conclusions In this work the data not only provided the history of the ship Catharine but also the economic social and political environments in which the ship was built and employed This work focuses not only on the shipwreck and the wrecking event but on the history and archaeology of a single ship With this expanded view the research also delves into International shipbuilding The struggle for dominance in the ship trade in the 19th century This book will be of interest to underwater historical and cultural archaeologists social historians cultural heritage managers and archaeologists working in the southeastern United States

Our Blue Planet: An Introduction to Maritime and Underwater Archaeology Ben Ford,Jessi J. Halligan,Alexis Catsambis,2020-04-07 Our Blue Planet provides a comprehensive introduction to the field of maritime and underwater archaeology Situating the field within the broader study of history and archaeology this book advocates that an understanding of how our ancestors interacted with rivers lakes and oceans is integral to comprehending the human past Our Blue Planet covers the full breadth of maritime and underwater archaeology including formerly terrestrial sites drowned by rising sea levels coastal sites and a wide variety of wreck sites ranging across the globe and spanning from antiquity to World War II Beginning with a definition of the field and several chapters dedicated to the methods of finding recording and interpreting submerged sites Our Blue Planet provides an entry point for all readers whether or not they are familiar with maritime and underwater archaeology or archaeology in general The book then shifts to a thematic approach with chapters exploring human interactions with the watery world both along the coasts and by ship These chapters discuss the relationships between culture technology and environment that allowed humans through time to spread across the globe Because ships were the primary means for humans to interact with large bodies of water they are the focus of several chapters on the development of shipbuilding technology the lives of sailors and the uses of ships in exploration expansion and warfare The book ends with chapters on how and why the non renewable submerged archaeological record should be managed so that both current and future generations can learn from the achievements and failures of past societies as well as on how anyone can become involved in maritime and underwater archaeology Throughout the reader benefits from the personal reflections of a number of leading figures in the field

The Archaeology of Watercraft Abandonment Nathan Richards,Sami Kay Seeb,2013-06-05 The historical importance and archaeological potential of deliberately discarded watercraft has not been a major feature of maritime archaeological enquiry While research on the topic has appeared since the 1970s as books chapters and articles most examples have been limited in focus and distribution and in most cases disseminated as unpublished archaeological reports i e the gray literature So too has there been a lack of a single source representing the diversity of geographical historic thematic and theoretical contexts that ships graveyard sites and deliberately abandoned vessels represent In contrast with much of the theoretical or case specific literature on the theme of watercraft discard this volume communicates to the reader the common heritage and global themes that ships graveyard sites represent It serves as a blueprint to illustrate how the remains of abandoned vessels in ships graveyards are sites of considerable research value Moreover the case studies in this volume assist researchers in understanding the evolution of maritime technologies economies and societies This volume is intended to expose research potential create discussion and reinforce the significance of a prevalent cultural resource that is often overlooked The Archaeology of Medieval Ships and Harbours in Northern Europe Sean McGrail,1979 Cover title Medieval ships and harbours in northern Europe Ships, Innovation and Social Change Jonathan Adams,2003 Ph D Dissertation Partial Contents Ships boats as archaeological source material Reading Ships Ships as Society From Medieval to Modern Ships of State Hull Structures Spars Rigging Fittings Ordnance Guns or Barricas Shipwrights status power Carvel Building in retrospect Maritime Material Culture References Glossary Appendices Ancient Boats in North-West Europe Sean McGrail,2014-06-11 At last a paperback edition of this standard work on marine archaeology Sean McGrail's study received exceptional critical acclaim when it was first published in hardback in 1987 and it is now revised and published in paperback for the first time Professor McGrail provides an authoritative survey of water transport across Northern Europe from the Late Palaeolithic to the later Middle Ages using evidence of excavations but also documentary sources iconographic and ethnographic evidence In the process he answers such key questions as How were these boats built What sort of environment were they used in What speeds could they achieve and how were they navigated
