The Chemical Warfare Service: The chemical warfare service; from laboratory to field, 1959     The Chemical Warfare Service Leo P. Brophy, Wyndham D. Miles, Rexmond Canning Cochrane, 1959 This volume the second in a series of three devoted to the Chemical Warfare Service CWS in World War II now the Chemical Corps covers research development procurement and distribution of chemical warfare materiel It traces the history of these activities from the World War I period when the CWS was activated to supervise the offensive and defensive aspects of gas warfare throughout the Army until the end of World War II The first volume in the series Organizing for War discusses the development of the CWS organization and mission as well as personnel management and military training The third volume entitled Chemicals in Combat will deal with the chemical warfare activities in the theaters of operations In treating research and development the present volume concentrates on CWS projects that proved of greatest significance to the armed forces during World War II It attempts to point up the problems that arose in course of research and development and to indicate the solutions which the scientists hit upon Since research and development in the zone of the interior was closely related to research and development in the theaters of operations the volume covers activities in both areas In contrast to research and development procurement and distribution differed considerably as between the zone of the interior and the theaters of operations in the theaters these activities were closely associated with the commanders combat responsibilities The volume therefore confines itself to a review of procurement and distribution in the zone of the interior leaving narration of theater activities to the volume Chemicals in combat

The Chemical Warfare Service: From Laboratory to Field, 2010, *, 2011     The Chemical Warfare Service Rexmond C. Cochrane, Wyndham D. Miles, Leo P. Brophy, 2015-06-27 Rather belatedly the United States Army in preparing for World War II investigated on an intensive and very large scale the chemical munitions that might be necessary or useful in fighting the Axis powers This effort required the collaboration of a host of civilian scientists and research centers as well as a great expansion of the laboratories and proving grounds of the Chemical Warfare Service itself A similar development recounted at the beginning of this work came too late to influence the outcome of World War I In World War II on the other hand the Army not only prepared against gas warfare sufficiently well to discourage its employment by the enemy but also developed a number of new chemical weapons that contributed materially to victory The authors add perspective and interest to their story by telling very briefly about corresponding German and Japanese activity The manufacture of chemical munitions in quantity was possible only through a rapid expansion of private industry to support and supplement the work of Army arsenals Both necessity and choice led the Chemical Warfare Service to make widespread use of small industrial concerns throughout the United States and the account of production in this work is especially pertinent to a consideration of the problems involved in military contracting with small business on a big scale In this and other respects From Laboratory to Field complements other volumes in the Army series dealing with problems of
