Turner, 2014-05-09 Singapore like many other advanced economies has a relatively low and declining birth rate One consequence of this and a consequence also of the successful economy is that migrants are being drawn in and are becoming an increasing proportion of the overall population This book examines this crucial development and assesses its likely impact on Singapore society politics and the state It shows that although Singapore is a multi ethnic society migration and the changing ethnic mix are causing increasing strains putting new demands on housing education and social welfare and changing the make up of the workforce where the government is responding with policies designed to attract the right sort of talent The book discusses the growing opposition to migration and explores how the factors which have underpinned Singapore s success over recent decades including a cohesive elite with a clearly focused ideology a tightly controlled political system and strong continuity of government are at risk of being undermined by the population changes and their effects The book also compares the position in Singapore with other East Asian countries including Japan South Korea and the Philippines which are also experiencing population changes with potentially far reaching consequences      Ageing in the Asia-Pacific Region David R. Phillips, 2002-11-01 First Published in 2004 The Asia Pacific region is now clearly witnessing the rapid ageing of many of its nations and Asia is already the region with relatively the largest number of older persons This book focuses on the challenges that this demographic trend poses to economies and societies in the region and the policies that have evolved to date to meet new demands It looks forward over the coming decades to consider how societies and economies will deal with ageing and the necessary structural and behavioural changes that this will entail The book is organized into two main sections The first introduces the key features demography research and long term care issues of the region and provides region wide context and analysis The second section offers in depth case studies of thirteen countries including China Japan Korea and Indonesia As well as providing a wealth of original research material the book also offers valuable comparative analysis while the larger economies have had to develop policies to maintain their social and economic successes in the face of demographic ageing developing countries must find ways to build their economies around an ageing population With contributors drawn from a range of academic and professional disciplines including many practising social gerontologists this book will be of interest to scholars in economics sociology social policy health policy politics and development studies With its particular emphasis on the future it will also be an essential reference for anybody with a professional interest in policy making in the region      The International

Cyclopedia Harry Thurston Peck, 1898      Singapore's Multiculturalism Chan Heng Chee, Sharon Siddique, 2019-03-15 Since independence in 1965 Singapore has developed its own unique approach to managing the diversity of Race Religion Culture Language Nationality and Age among its citizens This approach is a consequence of many factors including its very distinct ethnic makeup compared with its neighbours its ambitions as a globally oriented city state and its small physical size Each of these factors and many others have presented Singapore society with a range of challenges and opportunities and will in all likelihood continue to do so for the foreseeable future In the writing of this book the author team set themselves the task of projecting the impact of current domestic and international social trends into the future to anticipate what Singapore society might look like by around 2040 In doing so they analyse the particular path that Singapore has taken since independence in comparison with other multicultural societies and with regard to the balance between the necessity of forging a new national identity after British rule and departure from Malaysia and the need to ensure that Singapore's ethnic minority populations remain socially enfranchised. They further consider how current trends may develop over the next couple of decades, what new challenges this may present to Singapore society and what might be the likely responses to such challenges. In this book, Singapore is a case study of a global city facing the challenges of developed world modernity in frequently acute ways.
