

A photograph of a flooded tunnel. The water is high, covering most of the floor and reaching up to the windows of a boat. The boat is a long, dark vessel, possibly a freighter or a large passenger ship, with its name partially visible on the side. It is positioned in the center of the frame, facing towards the right. The tunnel walls are made of rough, grey stone. In the distance, a bright light source at the end of the tunnel creates a strong glow and illuminates the water. The overall atmosphere is dark and mysterious.
